Dag Sifts U.S. Request To Expel Czech U.N. Diplomat In Spy Case

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.S. spy charges against a handsome Czech diplomat and his counter-claim that American intelligence tried to hire him landed on U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's desk today.

Central figure in the drama is Miroslav Nacvalac, 39, No. 3 man in the Czech U.N. mission. He declared he will ignore U.S. demands that he leave the country until he gets instructions from his government.

A U.N. spokesman said Hammarskjold is studying a U.S. request that Nacvalac be expelled on grounds he had been collecting information from an American government worker for almost a year.

Also before the secretary-general was a protest from the Czech U.N. mission claiming U.S. agents had dangled promises of unlimited wealth before Nacvalac if he would become a spy for the United States.

Both the U.S. and Czech accounts were replete with cloak and dagger details including threats of blackmail and violence, but the facts varied sharply.

State Department spokesman Lincoln White gave this account to newsmen in Washington:

Nacvalac made contact about a year ago with an American, then a government employe, and demanded his cooperation, threatening that the American's fiancee in Czechoslovakia would be prevented from joining him in the United States.

"She was used as a hostage to force the individual's cooperation in espionage activities," White said.

White said Nacvalac not only used threats but indicated there was a possibility he might defect and remain in the United States.

"Let me make clear, however, that in fact the American citizen was cooperating with this government while seeming to act under Nacvalac's instructions," White said.

The spokesman said the American had access to classified U.S. information, but that he furnished only "purported" secrets to Nacvalac.

He added that the American was of Czech origin. The department withheld his name and that of his fiancee. She has since been admitted to the United States and they are now married, he said.

"Nacvalac paid sums of money for what he believed to be classified information of the U.S. government," White said.

He said a meeting was arranged with Nacvalac last Tuesday at the Gripsholm Restaurant in New York. The meeting was attended by special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Lt. Col. Frantisek Tisler, military attache at the Czech Embassy in Washington who defected in 1959 and was granted asylum in the United States.

White said the agents were present to discuss with Nacvalac his alleged interest in remaining here.

"During the course of this meeting," White said, "it became unmistakably clear that Nacvalac's motivations and intentions were not genuine and were highly suspect."

Nacvalac gave a sharply different version of the rendezvous. Sipping a martini in the U.N.'s south lounge he told reporters this story:

Last Tuesday he was lunching with an unidentified American friend at the Gripsholm when three men entered, one of whom he recognized as Tisler.

Tisler introduced the two others to Nacvalac as "Mr. Mack and Mr. Jack," and the American friend left when one of the two flashed a badge.

"Mirek," said Tisler, using a familiar form of Nacvalac's first name, "We would like you to be with us. Mr. Mack can open all the doors to the White House for you."

"Mirek," Mack interposed, "if there is something we can do for you, the question of money is completely unimportant to us. We can get you all the money you want."

Mack then promised a "nice big home, cars, clothing for you and your family and an excellent education for your children."

Nacvalac said the agents wanted him to keep his job as counsellor in the Czech mission and work for the U.S. government.

At the end of a two-hour talk, Nacvalac said, the agents appeared "fed up with the whole thing."

Arroyo Sand Plant Operator Slain By Business Partner

McDonald Man Jailed For Murder

Leonard Bywaters Of Below Newell Is Victim In Dispute

A running argument between partners in the Arroyo Sand & Gravel Co. ended in the murder of Leonard O. Bywaters Friday at the home of his business associate, Chester Hoffman, at McDonald, 14 miles north of Washington, Pa.

Mr. Bywaters, 51, of New Cumberland R. D., was shot six times with a .32 automatic by Hoffman, 53, at the latter's home about 8:30 a.m. Hoffman phoned McDonald police and surrendered to Police Chief E. A. Matthews.

Police found the body lying on the livingroom floor of the Hoffman home, where Washington County Coroner Farrall Jackson said Mr. Bywaters died instantly from the fusillade of bullets which struck him in the neck and chest.

Hoffman's wife and four of their six children were asleep upstairs at the time.

Chief Matthews said Hoffman reported Mr. Bywaters had phoned him about 6 a.m. then appeared at the house two hours later. A bitter argument ensued and the shooting followed.

The chief added Hoffman explained he, Hoffman, had been attempting to withdraw from the partnership because of business losses and reasons of health. The suspect said Mr. Bywaters had been "harrassing" him for some time and had visited the McDonald home Thursday.

Hoffman alleged Mr. Bywaters had "pushed him and made threats" at the previous visit. The violent argument resumed yesterday after the phone call and the victim's second appearance at the house.

The suspect claims Mr. Bywaters was incensed at Hoffman's intentions to withdraw and that they argued over the amount invested in the business, located between Newell and New Cumberland.

McDonald police said Hoffman had been under a doctor's care with a heart condition and desired to be relieved of the pressure of operating the sand and gravel firm. Hoffman's wife also is recovering from an illness. Two of their children are married and reside away from home.

A charge of first degree murder was filed against Hoffman, who was transferred from the McDonald jail to the Washington County jail at Washington to await action of the Grand Jury.

The coroner called an inquest for Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Courthouse.

Mr. Bywaters' body was taken to the Washington Hospital for an autopsy this morning.

Mr. Bywaters was a riverboat captain on sand dredges in the Ohio River for more than 20 years

Legislature To End Work In Two Weeks

Appropriations Bill Slows Pace; Small Loan Interest Hiked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Despite the best efforts of all concerned, Ohio's weary lawmakers will be in session at least two more weeks.

Thus the 104th General Assembly will miss by almost exactly one month the original target date for winding up its regular session.

The difficulty lies with the general appropriations bill to operate state departments for the next two years starting July 1. The Republican - controlled legislature has moved slowly on the $2-billion-plus budget because it was offered by a Democratic governor.

Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem, R-Athens, now believes the big money bill will come to a Senate vote about June 27.

That would give lawmakers three days to settle their last-minute differences if they expect to end their working session by June 30.

The Senate held an unusual solo meeting Friday in an attempt to clear up some of the backlog of bills. The House held only a skeleton session to receive the proposed laws. Monday afternoon both houses will be back at it, hammer and thongs, trying to wind up the session.

A bill to increase small-loan interest rates, the first since 1943, was among the top issues before the Senate Friday. The Senate finally completed action on the House-approved bill by a 27-9 vote.

Sponsors asserted the amount the small-loan industry has averaged per $100 in loans has dwindled gradually over recent years from $7.86 in 1948 to $5.50 in 1959 while bank rates on short-term loans have risen.

Senate debate indicated that the interest rate on loans below $450 will drop slightly, but that rates on loans up to $2,000 will rise. An increase in the lending capacity of such firms from $1,000 at present to $2,000 is another major factor of the measure.

The biggest argument of the Senate's day centered around a bill to set standards for safety glass in automobile windows at a right angle to or forward of a passenger—in other wards, everything except the rear window.

Everyone appeared agreed that laminated safety glass is best for windshields. Beyond that point, all agreement ceased and tempers flared.

The bill passed 21-15 on a strictly non-party line vote.

Observers predicted freely that because of the Senate battle and because the session will end soon the measure has little or no chance for approval in the House.

Vote Results Stand

NEW CUMBERLAND — The results of the municipal election held Tuesday were declared official by Town Council, which reported no changes after a canvass of the ballots Friday night. Mayor Albert Fuccy was given his sixth consecutive two-year term in the nonpartisan election.

Special Session Ends

Legislature OK's Barron Package

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Like the 60-day regular session last winter, the just-ended three-day special session of the Legislature gave Gov. Barron everything he asked.

Before they adjourned Friday night and headed home, the senators and delegates passed at Barron's request acts which will:

1 — Put off until June 30, 1962, the expiration of the "temporary" retail sales tax increase which has been in effect since January. The boost from 2 to 3 per cent on sales above $1 had been scheduled to die Aug. 31 this year.

2 — Use the tax extension proceeds for the state's $6.96-million share of a new $26.27-million outlay for welfare functions of the Department of Public Assistance. The Federal government will put up $19.3 million — 70 per cent — of the total.

3 — Enable the state to take part in the new federal program of aid to the unemployed with dependent children. The DPA appropriation includes $4.93 million for these grants. Federal money will bring the total for grants to $22.15 million.

4 — Enable the state to requisition as much of a county's general relief fund as can qualify for federal matching money. This will make possible for the first time 50-50 federal help on foster home payments.

5 — Give the DPA director sole dismissal and reinstatement power as to county public assistance employes once they have attained permanent civil service status. County public assistance councils heretofore have had the hiring and firing power.

6—Enable the DPA to expand its staff by 322 persons and raise salaries. The director's salary was boosted from $8,000 to $11,500 a year. Included in the DPA appropriation is an additional $1.04 million in state funds for salaries.

The changes as to the DPA take effect July 1. That is when the agency's name becomes the Department of Welfare and the director's title becomes commissioner of welfare under an act passed by the Legislature last winter.

One other matter the Legislature disposed of before winding up last night was that of hunting and fishing license exemptions for the elderly.

Persons 60 and older are now permitted to fish without a license and those 65 and older are exempt from hunting licenses. But under an act passed last winter, these exemptions would have gone off the book July 1.

The special session voted to continue exemptions but to make 65 the exemption age for both hunting and fishing.

Barron in a post-adjournment statement summed up the special session's work as "another great contribution toward keeping West Virginia on the advance."

Council Completes Plans

14 District Playgrounds To Begin Season Monday

The 14 area playgrounds to be operated this summer by the East Liverpool Recreation Council will be officially opened Monday afternoon.

Merrill D. Hall, director, said the playlots will be open from 1 to 4 and 6 to 9 p. m. daily Monday through Friday. They will be operated for 10 weeks.

Plans for the opening and the hiring of six more supervisors for the lots were completed at a meeting of the council Friday night at the high school.

All the supervisors are to report to the high school Monday at 10 a. m. to pick up supplies, receive first aid equipment and get final instructions.

The supervisors are paid $35 a week, or $3.50 per session, for their work. The money is received from the Community Fund.

Harry Wolfe, a teacher, will serve as regional director this year while Mrs. Judith Linger Comm will be the handicraft director. Mrs. Comm will visit the playgrounds, setting up craft work for the children and distributing supplies.

All the supervisors are college students. Those in charge of the lots and their colleges are:

East Liverpool — Shirley Skidmore of Eastern Nazarene, McKinley; Bruce Jones of Case, Pleasant Heights; Linda McIntosh of Kent State, LaCroft; Barbara Nally of Kent, Emmanuel; Marsha Franklin of Baldwin-Wallace, Glenmoor; William Smith of Baldwin - Wallace, Lincoln, and Richard Jones of Baldwin - Wallace, Klondyke.

Chester — Elizabeth Erlitz of West Virginia, Jack Owen; Doris Bourne of West Liberty, City Park; Jean Gregory of West Virginia, and Mary Lee Mosser of Mt. Union, high school; Kathy DeLong of West Liberty, Central, and Bertha Cunningham of David Lipscomb, Grandview.

Newell — Ellen Jane Broomhall of West Virginia, 4th St., and Ronda Bourne of Glenville State, Clark Field.

The supervisors have been instructed to open and close the lots on time. They will set up a planned program of recreation and games.

They also have been instructed to notify the police if necessary if outsiders or passersby cause any trouble.

Hall said a program of weekly events such as doll and pet contests, costume shows, etc., will be announced later.

Injunction Seen Goal In Seaport Tieup

Ports 'Paralyzed' As Strike Spreads; Peace Talks Asked

NEW YORK (AP)—The creeping paralysis of a major maritime strike spread to seaports around the nation today as federal mediators pleaded for a full resumption of peace talks. There were reports that a federal injunction might be sought by one shipping group.

Thirty port cities and almost 1,000 freighters, tankers and passenger liners are involved in the strike, which began last Thursday midnight.

Major snarls to a settlement are a shippers' claim that the striking unions threatened to price the industry out of existence, and union demands for the right to organize "foreign-flag" shipping.

With White House intervention to head off the walkout a failure, pickets in New York, New Jersey, Louisiana, Texas and Massachusetts and other shipping areas marched at piers to halt work.

Violence flared. Three men were injured in a fight Friday when Texaco refinery workers near Camden, N.J., tried to cross a picket line set up by the National Maritime Union. Four persons were arrested.

Federal officials intensified efforts to get the seven unions representing 85,000 seamen and the bulk of the nation's shipping operators back to the bargaining table.

Union Rejects Pay Cutback

Lisbon Firm Cites Loss Of Business

LISBON — A proposal for a roll-back in wages and postponement of a scheduled pay increase has been voted down, 62-23, by the United Brick and Clay Workers Local of the H. K. Porter Co.'s Thomas Plant.

The company proposed that the union forego a 7-cent hourly increase due July 1 and accept a wage cut that would amount to $1.25 per month for each worker.

The company made the twin proposal for a three-month trial period because of adverse economic conditions.

James Zboyvosky, manager, said the plant has operated at a loss for four years and that the general market price level has declined. He said a major competitor recently reduced prices another 10 per cent, worsening the firm's situation.

He pointed out the firm granted numerous benefits and increased wages despite the continued loss of earnings. He remarked the last two years have been highly productive "supplying a good payroll for Lisbon." The firm employs 174.

"We have tried everything in the past four years, even reducing administrative and supervisory personnel, in an effort to get the

Area Shows First General Gain Of Year

13 Of 15 Lines List May Improvements, Chamber Reports

General business and industrial conditions in the East Liverpool area showed the strongest upturn of the year in May, with gains in 13 of the 15 lines, the Chamber of Commerce said today in its monthly summary of conditions.

Claims Of District Unemployed Decline

Claims for unemployment compensation showed a drop of 105 this week, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office, reported.

Total claims processed reached 836, compared to 941 for the week ending June 10, Dinsmore said.

The breakdown showed 642 regular claims and 194 received under the federal extension program. The regular claims included 79 new and 563 continued while 12 new claims were filed under the extended section and 182 were continued.

Industrial employment climbed slightly and there was a 12 per cent drop in the city's relief case load. Big increases in sales of both new and used cars were accompanied by a boost in sales tax revenue. Increases in railroad shipments and river freight traffic indicated boosts in area industrial activity. Bank clearings and debits and postal receipts also gained.

But a comparison of the first five months of 1961 with the same time in 1960 shows the levels of this year's activities generally down. Two of the indices are up, compared with the first five months of 1960, but 13 others are down.

The 12 area factories had 3,857 on their payrolls in May, up 0.05 per cent from the 3,837 shown in April. Their employment averaged 3,848 monthly through May

New Leftist Riots Greet Adlai In Lima

LIMA, Peru (AP)—New leftist rioting greeted Adlai Stevenson Friday on his arrival in Lima to discuss President Kennedy's plan to raise Latin American living standards. Heavily armed police braced for new disorders today.

Leftist students, who had proclaimed Stevenson unwelcome even before he arrived, demonstrated repeatedly in small groups in downtown Lima. Police dispersed them with tear gas. No injuries were reported.

Stevenson, given a friendly welcome at the airport, was far away from the demonstrations at the U.S. Embassy. Later he quipped to reporters: "I like all Peruvians, including students."

This is the third country in succession in which violence coincided with Stevenson's arrival on his tour of Latin America.

Five were killed in La Paz Thursday night in leftist riots believed designed to embarrass the Bolivian government at a time when Stevenson was conferring with President Victor Paz Estenssoro.

Discoverer Satellite In Polar Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Discoverer No. 25 satellite was circling the earth every 91 minutes today, carrying a secret payload the Air Force hopes to recover in 1 to 4 days.

The 2,100-pound satellite, 18th in the series to achieve polar orbit, blasted into space through heavy fog at 7:03 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time Friday.

Because of the fog, newsmen a mile from the launch area were unable to see either the missile or its exhaust. But they heard its roar as it sped upward.

An hour and 45 minutes later, tracking stations in Hawaii and Alaska reported the space vehicle was in orbit.

Since the first Discoverer launching Feb. 28, 1959, only seven have failed to orbit. But the figures on capsule recovery are much less impressive.

5 Are Injured In Series Of 3 Auto Crashes

Girl Of Columbiana Hospitalized After Mishap On Route 7

Five persons were injured, including a Columbiana girl who was hospitalized, in three separate accidents investigated Friday by the Lisbon State Highway Patrol.

Officers said Catherine Thomas, 17, was admitted to Salem City Hospital after the car in which she was a passenger rammed the curb at the intersection of Routes 7 and 14 Friday midnight.

Officers said the frame of the car, driven by Barry J. Pierce, 18, of Lisbon R. D. 1, broke after it hit the curb and came to a sudden halt. Pierce and the girl were thrown into the windshield.

Miss Thomas suffered contusions of the left leg and shoulder and a possible concussion. Pierce suffered bruises of the right knee and elbow.

Cars driven by Arthur E. Roberts, 22, of Hammondsville R. D. 1 and Leet Raffle, 53, of 511 Jefferson St., Salineville, collided at the intersection of Route 39 and the Old Steubenville Pike, about six miles northwest of Wellsville, Friday at 8:45 p. m.

Officers said Roberts, who was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way, pulled into the path of Raffle.

Mrs. Mae Raffle, 49, a passenger in her husband's car, suffered lacerations of the nose and whiplash of the neck. Mrs. Lydia Roberts, 53, of Hammondsville, a passenger in the Roberts vehicle, suffered bruises of the right knee. Both were treated by a Salineville physician.

Cars driven by Alan J. Simmons, 67, of Barberton and Olev Tennola Jr., 23, of Summitville collided Friday at 11:30 a. m. when Simmons pulled into the path of the Tennola vehicle at the intersection of Routes 9 and 172 at New Garden.

Simmons was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way. Alma Horn of Summitville, a passenger in the Tennola car, suffered possible rib injuries. She was treated at Salem City Hospital.

Plane Crash Injuries Claim Weirton Pilot

Joe Foley, 46, of Weirton, one of two men injured in the crash of a light plane Monday, died Friday at Aliquippa Hospital.

A passenger, Fr. Michael C. Kushner, 41, also of Weirton, was reported in satisfactory condition.

Mr. Foley's plane went into a nosedive and crashed on the farm of John Siktar in nearby Hopewell Twp. The two men were trapped in the wreckage until rescuers cut them out.

Fr. Kushner is pastor of St. Mary's Byzantine Catholic Church at Weirton.

6—Enable the DPA to expand its staff by 322 persons and raise salaries. The director's salary was boosted from $8,000 to $11,500 a year. Included in the DPA appropriation is an additional $1.04 million in state funds for salaries.

The changes as to the DPA take effect July 1. That is when the agency's name becomes the Department of Welfare and the director's title becomes commissioner of welfare under an act passed by the Legislature last winter.

One other matter the Legislature disposed of before winding up last night was that of hunting and fishing license exemptions for the elderly.

Persons 60 and older are now permitted to fish without a license and those 65 and older are exempt from hunting licenses. But under an act passed last winter, these exemptions would have gone off the book July 1.

The special session voted to continue exemptions but to make 65 the exemption age for both hunting and fishing.

Barron in a post-adjournment statement summed up the special session's work as "another great contribution toward keeping West Virginia on the advance."

Injunction Seen Goal In Seaport Tieup

Ports 'Paralyzed' As Strike Spreads; Peace Talks Asked

NEW YORK (AP)—The creeping paralysis of a major maritime strike spread to seaports around the nation today as federal mediators pleaded for a full resumption of peace talks. There were reports that a federal injunction might be sought by one shipping group.

Thirty port cities and almost 1,000 freighters, tankers and passenger liners are involved in the strike, which began last Thursday midnight.

Major snarls to a settlement are a shippers' claim that the striking unions threatened to price the industry out of existence, and union demands for the right to organize "foreign-flag" shipping.

With White House intervention to head off the walkout a failure, pickets in New York, New Jersey, Louisiana, Texas and Massachusetts and other shipping areas marched at piers to halt work.

Violence flared. Three men were injured in a fight Friday when Texaco refinery workers near Camden, N.J., tried to cross a picket line set up by the National Maritime Union. Four persons were arrested.

Federal officials intensified efforts to get the seven unions representing 85,000 seamen and the bulk of the nation's shipping operators back to the bargaining table.

Union Rejects Pay Cutback

Lisbon Firm Cites Loss Of Business

LISBON — A proposal for a roll-back in wages and postponement of a scheduled pay increase has been voted down, 62-23, by the United Brick and Clay Workers Local of the H. K. Porter Co.'s Thomas Plant.

The company proposed that the union forego a 7-cent hourly increase due July 1 and accept a wage cut that would amount to $1.25 per month for each worker.

The company made the twin proposal for a three-month trial period because of adverse economic conditions.

James Zboyvosky, manager, said the plant has operated at a loss for four years and that the general market price level has declined. He said a major competitor recently reduced prices another 10 per cent, worsening the firm's situation.

He pointed out the firm granted numerous benefits and increased wages despite the continued loss of earnings. He remarked the last two years have been highly productive "supplying a good payroll for Lisbon." The firm employs 174.

"We have tried everything in the past four years, even reducing administrative and supervisory personnel, in an effort to get the

Council Completes Plans

14 District Playgrounds To Begin Season Monday

The 14 area playgrounds to be operated this summer by the East Liverpool Recreation Council will be officially opened Monday afternoon.

Merrill D. Hall, director, said the playlots will be open from 1 to 4 and 6 to 9 p. m. daily Monday through Friday. They will be operated for 10 weeks.

Plans for the opening and the hiring of six more supervisors for the lots were completed at a meeting of the council Friday night at the high school.

All the supervisors are to report to the high school Monday at 10 a. m. to pick up supplies, receive first aid equipment and get final instructions.

The supervisors are paid $35 a week, or $3.50 per session, for their work. The money is received from the Community Fund.

Harry Wolfe, a teacher, will serve as regional director this year while Mrs. Judith Linger Comm will be the handicraft director. Mrs. Comm will visit the playgrounds, setting up craft work for the children and distributing supplies.

All the supervisors are college students. Those in charge of the lots and their colleges are:

East Liverpool — Shirley Skidmore of Eastern Nazarene, McKinley; Bruce Jones of Case, Pleasant Heights; Linda McIntosh of Kent State, LaCroft; Barbara Nally of Kent, Emmanuel; Marsha Franklin of Baldwin-Wallace, Glenmoor; William Smith of Baldwin - Wallace, Lincoln, and Richard Jones of Baldwin - Wallace, Klondyke.

Chester — Elizabeth Erlitz of West Virginia, Jack Owen; Doris Bourne of West Liberty, City Park; Jean Gregory of West Virginia, and Mary Lee Mosser of Mt. Union, high school; Kathy DeLong of West Liberty, Central, and Bertha Cunningham of David Lipscomb, Grandview.

Newell — Ellen Jane Broomhall of West Virginia, 4th St., and Ronda Bourne of Glenville State, Clark Field.

The supervisors have been instructed to open and close the lots on time. They will set up a planned program of recreation and games.

They also have been instructed to notify the police if necessary if outsiders or passersby cause any trouble.

Hall said a program of weekly events such as doll and pet contests, costume shows, etc., will be announced later.

Vote Results Stand

NEW CUMBERLAND — The results of the municipal election held Tuesday were declared official by Town Council, which reported no changes after a canvass of the ballots Friday night. Mayor Albert Fuccy was given his sixth consecutive two-year term in the nonpartisan election.

Area Shows First General Gain Of Year

13 Of 15 Lines List May Improvements, Chamber Reports

General business and industrial conditions in the East Liverpool area showed the strongest upturn of the year in May, with gains in 13 of the 15 lines, the Chamber of Commerce said today in its monthly summary of conditions.

Claims Of District Unemployed Decline

Claims for unemployment compensation showed a drop of 105 this week, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office, reported.

Total claims processed reached 836, compared to 941 for the week ending June 10, Dinsmore said.

The breakdown showed 642 regular claims and 194 received under the federal extension program. The regular claims included 79 new and 563 continued while 12 new claims were filed under the extended section and 182 were continued.

Industrial employment climbed slightly and there was a 12 per cent drop in the city's relief case load. Big increases in sales of both new and used cars were accompanied by a boost in sales tax revenue. Increases in railroad shipments and river freight traffic indicated boosts in area industrial activity. Bank clearings and debits and postal receipts also gained.

But a comparison of the first five months of 1961 with the same time in 1960 shows the levels of this year's activities generally down. Two of the indices are up, compared with the first five months of 1960, but 13 others are down.

The 12 area factories had 3,857 on their payrolls in May, up 0.05 per cent from the 3,837 shown in April. Their employment averaged 3,848 monthly through May

New Leftist Riots Greet Adlai In Lima

LIMA, Peru (AP)—New leftist rioting greeted Adlai Stevenson Friday on his arrival in Lima to discuss President Kennedy's plan to raise Latin American living standards. Heavily armed police braced for new disorders today.

Leftist students, who had proclaimed Stevenson unwelcome even before he arrived, demonstrated repeatedly in small groups in downtown Lima. Police dispersed them with tear gas. No injuries were reported.

Stevenson, given a friendly welcome at the airport, was far away from the demonstrations at the U.S. Embassy. Later he quipped to reporters: "I like all Peruvians, including students."

This is the third country in succession in which violence coincided with Stevenson's arrival on his tour of Latin America.

Five were killed in La Paz Thursday night in leftist riots believed designed to embarrass the Bolivian government at a time when Stevenson was conferring with President Victor Paz Estenssoro.

Discoverer Satellite In Polar Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Discoverer No. 25 satellite was circling the earth every 91 minutes today, carrying a secret payload the Air Force hopes to recover in 1 to 4 days.

The 2,100-pound satellite, 18th in the series to achieve polar orbit, blasted into space through heavy fog at 7:03 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time Friday.

Because of the fog, newsmen a mile from the launch area were unable to see either the missile or its exhaust. But they heard its roar as it sped upward.

An hour and 45 minutes later, tracking stations in Hawaii and Alaska reported the space vehicle was in orbit.

Since the first Discoverer launching Feb. 28, 1959, only seven have failed to orbit. But the figures on capsule recovery are much less impressive.

Girl Of Columbiana Hospitalized After Mishap On Route 7

Five persons were injured, including a Columbiana girl who was hospitalized, in three separate accidents investigated Friday by the Lisbon State Highway Patrol.

Officers said Catherine Thomas, 17, was admitted to Salem City Hospital after the car in which she was a passenger rammed the curb at the intersection of Routes 7 and 14 Friday midnight.

Officers said the frame of the car, driven by Barry J. Pierce, 18, of Lisbon R. D. 1, broke after it hit the curb and came to a sudden halt. Pierce and the girl were thrown into the windshield.

Miss Thomas suffered contusions of the left leg and shoulder and a possible concussion. Pierce suffered bruises of the right knee and elbow.

Cars driven by Arthur E. Roberts, 22, of Hammondsville R. D. 1 and Leet Raffle, 53, of 511 Jefferson St., Salineville, collided at the intersection of Route 39 and the Old Steubenville Pike, about six miles northwest of Wellsville, Friday at 8:45 p. m.

Officers said Roberts, who was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way, pulled into the path of Raffle.

Mrs. Mae Raffle, 49, a passenger in her husband's car, suffered lacerations of the nose and whiplash of the neck. Mrs. Lydia Roberts, 53, of Hammondsville, a passenger in the Roberts vehicle, suffered bruises of the right knee. Both were treated by a Salineville physician.

Cars driven by Alan J. Simmons, 67, of Barberton and Olev Tennola Jr., 23, of Summitville collided Friday at 11:30 a. m. when Simmons pulled into the path of the Tennola vehicle at the intersection of Routes 9 and 172 at New Garden.

Simmons was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way. Alma Horn of Summitville, a passenger in the Tennola car, suffered possible rib injuries. She was treated at Salem City Hospital.

Lions Hear Project

Eye Bank Center Proposed In City

Operation of a proposed Eye Bank "substation" in East Liverpool was discussed by Mrs. Carl Ludwig and Mrs. Ralph Clark at the meeting of the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

The purpose of the branch would be to establish facilities for the collection of eye tissue and delivery to an affiliated hospital where a corneal transplant operation could be performed to restore the sight of a blind person, Mrs. Ludwig explained.

MOST BRANCHES are activated by Lions Clubs under the direction of medical men and with the assistance of volunteers.

The medical staff of City Hospital has approved the plan and a preliminary discussion also has been held with Miss Nell Robinson, hospital superintendent, Mrs. Ludwig said. Mrs. Clark also has met with three morticians and another meeting is planned to explain the program.

A film, "The Boy With the Blindfold," has been shown to the Nurses Alumnae and the Rotary Club, and a tentative public meeting is planned in the fall to screen the film.

The East Liverpool Ministerial Association also will be contacted for endorsement. All major religions have endorsed eye donations, Mrs. Ludwig said.

IN ADDITION to using healthy corneal tissue to replace diseased tissue in a blind person, the vitrous or eye water would be used for treatment of a detached retina, and the remaining tissue would be used for research on eye diseases, she said.

The great need for eye tissue has stimulated many groups to set up eye banks with the approval of the American Medical Association in various hospitals where qualified eye surgeons are members of the staffs.

Eye surgery is not performed at City Hospital, Mrs. Ludwig continued, but the city's ideal geographical location makes it easy to transport the tissue to Pittsburgh where two hospitals perform the transplant, and Youngstown where the program is being established. In addition, Mercy Hospital in Canton and three in Akron also perform the operation.

She explained the cornea is a transparent, circular piece of tissue similar to a contact lens or a watch crystal. When the cornea is injured or infected to a serious degree and loses it transparency, it becomes opaque and blindness results.

THE OPERATION calls for removing the clouded tissue and replacing it with a healthy cornea similar to replacing frosted glass with a clear pane, Mrs. Ludwig explained.

Time is a vital element, she said, explaining that most surgeons require the tissue to be removed two or three hours after death, and transplant operations performed within 24 to 48 hours.

Willing the eyes is not suitable because of the time required to probate the wills nor can the eye tissue be used after the deceased is embalmed.

The branch's chief duty would be to secure pledges from people willing to donate their eyes following death, maintain an accurate filing system, a 24-hour answering service and provide transportation for the corneal tissue to the nearest hospital.

DONATING THE eyes is strictly voluntary, Mrs. Ludwig continued, pointing out the next-of-kin must sign the release for the donor's eyes to be removed after death.

Should the next-of-kin decide not to go along with the donor's request or the donor changes his mind, the name would be removed from the list. Many donors must be secured because of the comparatively few deaths in a year and the great need for eye tissue.

Poor eyesight, age, sex, color or creed does not stop anyone from becoming a donor. It does not alter the deceased's appearance in any way and it is up to the family to determine whether the public would know of the donation, Mrs. Ludwig said.

The filing system and answering service are required so that a release can be signed immediately by the next-of-kin and doctors notified so the eyes can be removed.

IN ADDITION, the affiliated hospital would be notified and two people selected from the waiting list to be prepared for the corneal transplant. After delivery of the eye tissue to the hospital, laboratory tests are conducted to make certain the tissue is suitable for transplanting.

Valuable discoveries made through research have increased the need for human eyes, she said, explaining the need for corneal tissue is greatly increased and the need for vitrous or eye water is practically unlimited, Mrs. Ludwig said.

Human eyes are necessary for research since some of the diseases are confined to man alone. She pointed out glaucoma affects two out of every 100 people after they reach 40 and increases progressively with age.

CATARACTS are present to some extent in 60 per cent of those who are 60 and by the time they reach 80 nearly 100 per cent have cataracts to some degree.

Mrs. Ludwig and Mrs. Clark, both private duty nurses, are heading the program to interest an organization in establishing an eye bank here. They were named co-chairmen to secure information about the proposal by the Nurses Alumnae Association.

A question-and-answer period followed the talk. Mrs. Ludwig and Mrs. Clark were introduced by George McCullough, senior district deputy governor-elect. Donald Duke was program chairman and Howard E. Tice, president, presided.

McCullough will leave Tuesday to attend the Lions International convention opening Wednesday in Atlantic City.

5 Candidates File Reports At Deadline

Two East Palestine Council nominees, along with three defeated candidates from East Liverpool, Wellsville and Salem, filed last-minute statements of their campaign expenses in the May 2 primaries with the Board of Elections just before the deadline late Friday afternoon.

Eight other defeated candidates —one from East Liverpool, three from Wellsville, three from Leetonia and one from Salem — failed to file the sworn statements required by state law, Frank R. O'Hanlon said the names of the eight delinquents will be turned over to the election board for action. The board probably will meet within 10 days, he added.

State law provides that any candidate, whether successful or defeated, will be barred from seeking public office again for five years if he fails to file a report.

The last - minute filings by Donald R. Gallatin and Robert Figley, Democratic nominees for Council president and councilman-at-large in East Palestine, assured places on the ballot for the Nov. 7 general election. Both said they had no expenses. They were the last successful candidates to file.

The law forbids the board to issue certificates of nomination to candidates who fail to file the reports.

Losing candidates who submitted the reports before the deadline were Clifford Fultz, Democratic mayoralty candidate in Wellsville who listed expenses of $73.49; Frank J. Youst, Republican candidate for Council-at-large in East Liverpool who reported expenditure of $20, and George L. Conrad, GOP candidate for Fourth Ward Council in Salem who listed no expenses.

Sixteen candidates filed the reports earlier — two from East Liverpool, one each from Salem and Leetonia, three from Lisbon and nine from East Palestine.

The local reports were from: Frank Duffy, Democratic nominee for councilman - at - large, who reported he spent $19.22, and Harry Wilson, defeated candidate for the GOP nomination for Second Ward councilman, who spent $9.55.

The Salem, Lisbon and Leetonia candidates said they had no expenses. They are: James Aldom, Democratic candidate for councilman - at - large in Salem; Frank Gotti, Democratic Council candidate in Leetonia, and Mary E. Sowards, for village clerk, Paul Brownfield, for Council, and John Thompson, for Board of Trustees of Public Affairs, all in Lisbon.

Negative reports also were filed by the nine East Palestine candidates, all Democrats. Listed with the offices they sought, they are: Wilbur J. Spaite Jr. and Ernest Coff, both for councilman-at-large; William H. Martin, First Ward Council; Paul Geiger Jr., Fourth Ward Council; Robert G. Wichert, Third Ward Council; Byron D. Cope, First Ward Council; Donald E. Young, treasurer, and James H. Knight and Homer Freer, both for mayor.

Knight defeated Freer for the mayor's nomination. Other nominees in the group are: Coff, Geiger, Wichert, Cope and Young.

The East Liverpool Women's Republican Club had no expenses in connection with the primary, it was shown in a report filed by Mrs. Audrey Newtz, president. A negative report also was filed on behalf of the Lisbon village government in connection with an operating levy. The report was signed by Ray Hempstead, clerk.

A Tribute To Fathers!

There's an old saying that "mother knows best". Well, it seems to us that Father, bless him, should come in for some compliments, too, once in a while. It is true, of course, that upon mother's patient shoulders rests the upbringing of the children. And that is as it should be. But let's not forget that Pa is generally the family breadwinner and it is up to him to pay the bills. When day is done and he comes home, make things as cheery and loving as you can. Have a nice dinner ready. Lay out his slippers and his beloved pipe. Show him how much you love him by being kind and considerate. He may not tell you how he appreciates these attentions. But he will . . . as all good fathers do!

Lions Hear Project

Eye Bank Center Proposed In City

Operation of a proposed Eye Bank "substation" in East Liverpool was discussed by Mrs. Carl Ludwig and Mrs. Ralph Clark at the meeting of the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

The purpose of the branch would be to establish facilities for the collection of eye tissue and delivery to an affiliated hospital where a corneal transplant operation could be performed to restore the sight of a blind person, Mrs. Ludwig explained.

MOST BRANCHES are activated by Lions Clubs under the direction of medical men and with the assistance of volunteers.

The medical staff of City Hospital has approved the plan and a preliminary discussion also has been held with Miss Nell Robinson, hospital superintendent, Mrs. Ludwig said. Mrs. Clark also has met with three morticians and another meeting is planned to explain the program.

A film, "The Boy With the Blindfold," has been shown to the Nurses Alumnae and the Rotary Club, and a tentative public meeting is planned in the fall to screen the film.

The East Liverpool Ministerial Association also will be contacted for endorsement. All major religions have endorsed eye donations, Mrs. Ludwig said.

IN ADDITION to using healthy corneal tissue to replace diseased tissue in a blind person, the vitrous or eye water would be used for treatment of a detached retina, and the remaining tissue would be used for research on eye diseases, she said.

The great need for eye tissue has stimulated many groups to set up eye banks with the approval of the American Medical Association in various hospitals where qualified eye surgeons are members of the staffs.

Eye surgery is not performed at City Hospital, Mrs. Ludwig continued, but the city's ideal geographical location makes it easy to transport the tissue to Pittsburgh where two hospitals perform the transplant, and Youngstown where the program is being established. In addition, Mercy Hospital in Canton and three in Akron also perform the operation.

She explained the cornea is a transparent, circular piece of tissue similar to a contact lens or a watch crystal. When the cornea is injured or infected to a serious degree and loses it transparency, it becomes opaque and blindness results.

THE OPERATION calls for removing the clouded tissue and replacing it with a healthy cornea similar to replacing frosted glass with a clear pane, Mrs. Ludwig explained.

Time is a vital element, she said, explaining that most surgeons require the tissue to be removed two or three hours after death, and transplant operations performed within 24 to 48 hours.

Willing the eyes is not suitable because of the time required to probate the wills nor can the eye tissue be used after the deceased is embalmed.

The branch's chief duty would be to secure pledges from people willing to donate their eyes following death, maintain an accurate filing system, a 24-hour answering service and provide transportation for the corneal tissue to the nearest hospital.

DONATING THE eyes is strictly voluntary, Mrs. Ludwig continued, pointing out the next-of-kin must sign the release for the donor's eyes to be removed after death.

Should the next-of-kin decide not to go along with the donor's request or the donor changes his mind, the name would be removed from the list. Many donors must be secured because of the comparatively few deaths in a year and the great need for eye tissue.

Poor eyesight, age, sex, color or creed does not stop anyone from becoming a donor. It does not alter the deceased's appearance in any way and it is up to the family to determine whether the public would know of the donation, Mrs. Ludwig said.

The filing system and answering service are required so that a release can be signed immediately by the next-of-kin and doctors notified so the eyes can be removed.

IN ADDITION, the affiliated hospital would be notified and two people selected from the waiting list to be prepared for the corneal transplant. After delivery of the eye tissue to the hospital, laboratory tests are conducted to make certain the tissue is suitable for transplanting.

Valuable discoveries made through research have increased the need for human eyes, she said, explaining the need for corneal tissue is greatly increased and the need for vitrous or eye water is practically unlimited, Mrs. Ludwig said.

Human eyes are necessary for research since some of the diseases are confined to man alone. She pointed out glaucoma affects two out of every 100 people after they reach 40 and increases progressively with age.

CATARACTS are present to some extent in 60 per cent of those who are 60 and by the time they reach 80 nearly 100 per cent have cataracts to some degree.

Mrs. Ludwig and Mrs. Clark, both private duty nurses, are heading the program to interest an organization in establishing an eye bank here. They were named co-chairmen to secure information about the proposal by the Nurses Alumnae Association.

A question-and-answer period followed the talk. Mrs. Ludwig and Mrs. Clark were introduced by George McCullough, senior district deputy governor-elect. Donald Duke was program chairman and Howard E. Tice, president, presided.

McCullough will leave Tuesday to attend the Lions International convention opening Wednesday in Atlantic City.

5 Candidates File Reports At Deadline

Two East Palestine Council nominees, along with three defeated candidates from East Liverpool, Wellsville and Salem, filed last-minute statements of their campaign expenses in the May 2 primaries with the Board of Elections just before the deadline late Friday afternoon.

Eight other defeated candidates —one from East Liverpool, three from Wellsville, three from Leetonia and one from Salem — failed to file the sworn statements required by state law, Frank R. O'Hanlon said the names of the eight delinquents will be turned over to the election board for action. The board probably will meet within 10 days, he added.

State law provides that any candidate, whether successful or defeated, will be barred from seeking public office again for five years if he fails to file a report.

The last - minute filings by Donald R. Gallatin and Robert Figley, Democratic nominees for Council president and councilman-at-large in East Palestine, assured places on the ballot for the Nov. 7 general election. Both said they had no expenses. They were the last successful candidates to file.

The law forbids the board to issue certificates of nomination to candidates who fail to file the reports.

Losing candidates who submitted the reports before the deadline were Clifford Fultz, Democratic mayoralty candidate in Wellsville who listed expenses of $73.49; Frank J. Youst, Republican candidate for Council-at-large in East Liverpool who reported expenditure of $20, and George L. Conrad, GOP candidate for Fourth Ward Council in Salem who listed no expenses.

Sixteen candidates filed the reports earlier — two from East Liverpool, one each from Salem and Leetonia, three from Lisbon and nine from East Palestine.

The local reports were from: Frank Duffy, Democratic nominee for councilman - at - large, who reported he spent $19.22, and Harry Wilson, defeated candidate for the GOP nomination for Second Ward councilman, who spent $9.55.

The Salem, Lisbon and Leetonia candidates said they had no expenses. They are: James Aldom, Democratic candidate for councilman - at - large in Salem; Frank Gotti, Democratic Council candidate in Leetonia, and Mary E. Sowards, for village clerk, Paul Brownfield, for Council, and John Thompson, for Board of Trustees of Public Affairs, all in Lisbon.

Negative reports also were filed by the nine East Palestine candidates, all Democrats. Listed with the offices they sought, they are: Wilbur J. Spaite Jr. and Ernest Coff, both for councilman-at-large; William H. Martin, First Ward Council; Paul Geiger Jr., Fourth Ward Council; Robert G. Wichert, Third Ward Council; Byron D. Cope, First Ward Council; Donald E. Young, treasurer, and James H. Knight and Homer Freer, both for mayor.

Knight defeated Freer for the mayor's nomination. Other nominees in the group are: Coff, Geiger, Wichert, Cope and Young.

The East Liverpool Women's Republican Club had no expenses in connection with the primary, it was shown in a report filed by Mrs. Audrey Newtz, president. A negative report also was filed on behalf of the Lisbon village government in connection with an operating levy. The report was signed by Ray Hempstead, clerk.

Action Awaited On Measure To Acquire Theater

The way will be clear Monday night for Council to begin consideration of the final piece of enabling legislation required for the city to purchase the old Ceramic Theater building and convert the site into a metered off-street parking lot.

Council enacted the first legislation on May 16, but since it did not contain an emergency clause a 30-day wait was required before it became effective. Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper ruled about two weeks ago that Council would be required to wait until the first legislation was effective before considering the next.

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet gave his approval to the first measure May 31. It authorized the city to borrow $60,000 for the transaction —$45,000 for the purchase and $15,000 to raze the building, prepare and blacktop the site and install meters.

The legislation scheduled for initial action Monday night authorizes Safety - Service Director Lee Copenhaver to sign an agreement completing the purchase from heirs of the Tallman Estate.

If the latest piece of legislation encounters a split vote, as was the case with the first, it may require three readings for final enactment. That means its passage could not be expected before mid-July at the earliest. With another 30-day wait in prospect, it would not take effect before mid-August.

Action Awaited On Measure To Acquire Theater

The way will be clear Monday night for Council to begin consideration of the final piece of enabling legislation required for the city to purchase the old Ceramic Theater building and convert the site into a metered off-street parking lot.

Council enacted the first legislation on May 16, but since it did not contain an emergency clause a 30-day wait was required before it became effective. Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper ruled about two weeks ago that Council would be required to wait until the first legislation was effective before considering the next.

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet gave his approval to the first measure May 31. It authorized the city to borrow $60,000 for the transaction —$45,000 for the purchase and $15,000 to raze the building, prepare and blacktop the site and install meters.

The legislation scheduled for initial action Monday night authorizes Safety - Service Director Lee Copenhaver to sign an agreement completing the purchase from heirs of the Tallman Estate.

If the latest piece of legislation encounters a split vote, as was the case with the first, it may require three readings for final enactment. That means its passage could not be expected before mid-July at the earliest. With another 30-day wait in prospect, it would not take effect before mid-August.

Hancock Judge Now Entitled To 'Splice' Couples

The authority to perform marriage ceremonies has been vested in 1st Circuit Judge Ralph E. Pryor, who serves Hancock County Circuit Court in New Cumberland.

House Bill 287, passed by the 55th session of the West Virginia State Legislature, gave all circuit judges in the state the authority to unite qualified couples in marriage.

Heretofore, only ministers, priests and rabbis in the state had the authority to officiate at weddings.

The bill, which went into effect June 9, also changed slightly certificates for marriage licenses.

The ritual used by circuit judges in performing weddings was provided in the bill. The word "holy," is excluded from the ritual of circuit judges, but the clergy will continue to use the words "holy matrimony" in their rituals.

Time For Screening Is Coming

The Ohio Senate has turned thumbs down on a proposal that state universities set up entrance standards and discard the present statutory policy that any graduate of an accredited Ohio high school be admitted.

Such proposals have been made in previous sessions and they have met the same fate. This particular bill had special merit because it would have required the universities to work with the Department of Education in setting up standards for college preparatory courses in the high schools.

It is difficult to shake the idea that a tax-supported school ought to open its doors to anybody and everybody who wants to get in. There was a time when that idea had considerable validity. Fewer people felt the need or the desire to go to college and fewer people had the means to go to college.

And despite their limited facilities, by today's standards, the universities were able to handle just about everybody who wanted to come to the campus and give college life a whirl.

BUT THAT DAY is gone, and probably never will return. Thousands more students apply every year to the six universities than they can crowd into their constantly growing classroom and livign space.

To get around the requirement that they accept any graduate of an accredited Ohio high school, the universities have been forced to take all they can and then sort out those who are not able, willing or prepared to do the work. This is not done willfully or meanly. Every student who gains admittance has full opportunity and usually more than one chance to prove his desire and his ability.

But the natural effect of such an approach is that hundreds of students enter the universities who should not have been there in the first place. Until the time comes when either they or the universities finally decide that they must go, these students occupy living space, utilize facilities and require the attention of teachers which could have been used to better advantage by other students either more willing or capable of acquiring college educations.

THERE IS an element of waste involved, in other words. It is a waste of tax money, educational resources and the individual students' time and money. There is a waste of potential talent among those students who were crowded out.

It would be more logical to try to screen out, fairly and carefully, those who do not belong in college before they get there. We think the logic is evident to the people of Ohio. A poll by Sen. Donald C. Steiner, R-Canton, for instance, showed 73 per cent of those replying favored entrance standards for the state universities.

Pre-admittance screening is not only logical, but necessary. Although the assembly apparently is not going to make the switch to it this time, the day is coming when it will have to.

'Slow Down, Live'

Any project charted in the interest of traffic safety has merit.

Such is the "Slow Down and Live" safety campaign which will be pressed in Hancock County during the summer. Directors of various law enforcement agencies, with the cooperation of veterans' posts and other organizations, are behind the drive.

Traffic checks will be set up at various times during the summer to help bring home the program to the average motorist.

A reduction in accidents seems almost certain to result from the campaign.

Guidance Center Would Fill A Need

Judge Louis Tobin has urged the establishment of a guidance center for Columbiana County to provide much-needed additional facilities for treatment of the mentally ill.

Of particular concern are the youngsters with mental problems. Because of lack of facilities, minor ailments among the young quite often grow into major ones.

The judge's appeal should be given the most serious thought by organizations, public officials and all others concerned with the county's over-all welfare.

With matching funds from the state, the cost of such a project should not be exorbitant, although the yearly investment would be sizable and much work involved before a center could become a reality.

No one can afford to shrug off the proposal with a "this-doesn't-concern-me" attitude. Mental illness can strike anywhere at any time. No one knows when he or she might be more than glad to have a guidance center available for treatment of a mental affliction of his own or a member of the family.

Here is a challenge, the opening of another door in the fight against a greatly misunderstood problem. It cannot be ignored.

Establishment of such a center could serve as a spur to other counties to follow suit and broaden the mental health program. That such broadening is needed can be found in the words of Judge Tobin, who terms Ohio "50 years behind the times in its mental health program".

Every possible consideration should be given to the establishment of a countywide guidance center. The local counseling center offers proof positive that such unit's serve a worthwhile purpose.

'Ham' Week

The friendly electronic world of the amateur shortwave radio enthusiast will get special attention with the observance of "Amateur Radio Week" in Ohio June 18-24.

Gov. Michael DiSalle, in proclaiming the observance, has called attention to the public service rendered by "hams" in providing emergency communications when natural disasters strike and in serving the nation's Civil Defense signal nets.

There are some 250 amateurs in the Columbiana, Beaver, Hancock County area enjoying a complex and challenging hobby, but ready to fill a vital communication link if needed. With their equipment and know-how, they are a part of the nation's important resources.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Just heard of a parent who disappeared on eve Father's Day leaving following note:

"Be back when Father's Day is over. Do not worry. This is only way. Burn greeting cards, neckties, shirts and other stuff bought for me as a result of a whim, salesmanship and one-day salute.

"If anybody phones just say I am gone with Tavern Week, Hot Dog Month, National Goopies Day, etc. Dad."

There are few days in year that make pop so "regusted." He knows it was established wholly because of a feeling he had a break coming after Mother's Day.

He feels silly about it. And he knows he will get the bill, if the gifts weren't send COD.

No thought that he will win any popularity contest during the other 364 days is held by him. It will be a break if he gets anything but complaints, criticism and hard looks.

Before and after Father's Day it is always "Aw, you're always so unreasonable," "Why can't I use the car this weekend?" and "Never mind telling me what you did when you were a boy" from the kids.

Mother comes through with "Okay, leave me and see if I care."

Daddy is a big disappointment to the family, except for 12 hours in June, and he knows it. A box of socks, some cigars and an imitation leather billfold won't soften him up. And for weeks before Father's Day he has been made miserable by one thing: The fear somebody will send him a pot of geraniums.

Dad is just the man who airs the dog, signs checks and has his pockets picked by custom.

He is a hero only around Christmas, Father's Day or when being asked to devote a hot weekend driving the whole darned family in heavy traffic for no reason other than to see if hotdogs are better in one shore resort than another. (All he wants is to have his armchair reupholstered.)

U.S. SECURITY AGENCY man, suspected as defecting to Russia, was found playing races at Delaware park. He was a signal decoder and probably kept getting a strange message which he thought said "On the nose."

Danger to U.S. security is indeed menaced if security agents get horse race fever. Once a man stops observing and checking on the enemy and begins studying what a horse may be up to, all is lost.

Such a security agent can get so mixed up he might even filed a report that "Laos Cease-Fire" is late scratch and that "Carry Back" may be planning to attack Dominican Republic.

Detroit thinks compact car may constitute 50 per cent of sales through 1961. If a man must bump his skull getting in and out of an auto, why pay $4,000 to $6,000 to do it?

Queen Elizabeth gave titles or signal honors to a dance hall leader, motorcycle racer and mailman. It's about time somebody, somewhere honored letter carriers, most of whom rate title of Knight of the Unfailing Mailbag or Duke of Epistles.

We like Frank Holeman's crack "Codes of ethics don't seem to include auto repair stations."

Remember away back when you could pick up phone and get a number at once merely by asking and never have to dial a set of football signals just to get information?

One benefit of a trip to moon would be to get away from hedge clipping and crabgrass.

Ed Murrow says the type of movies sent abroad to give picture of U.S. life need change. Maybe most of the violence all over the earth is due to those cowboy and gangster films.

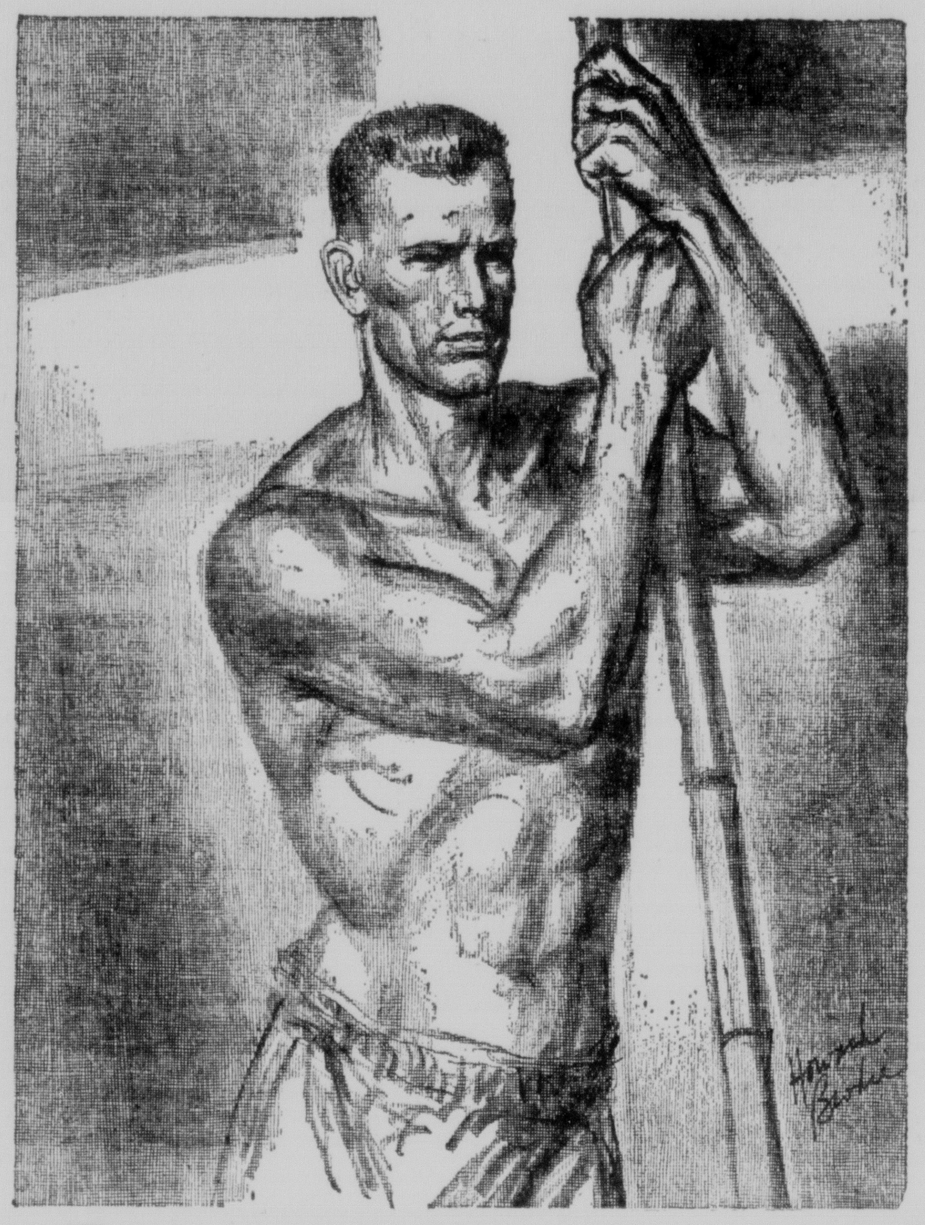
Lyndon Johnson invited a Pakistan camel driver to visit the United States and a Pakistan reporter says he expects to be put up at Waldorf. Fair warning: No tower suite for the camel!

The word "tabloid" was originally coined by a London, England, firm, and was applied to a preparation of drugs in a concentrated and condensed form. Although the term is a copyrighted trademark of that particular firm, it is now widely used to designate anything concise or condensed, as a "tabloid newspaper."

Rome was called "The Eternal City," even among the ancients. It was so called because the people thought that no matter what happened to the rest of the world, no matter how many other empires might rise and fall, Rome would go on forever.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie



Young athletes strengthen their spirits and skills at the summer conferences of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Their day begins with a devotion at breakfast, followed by sessions of "inspiration and perspiration." Athletes huddle to discuss Christian life, while coaches study ways to impart spiritual values. Greats such as Branch Rickey, Otto Graham and George Kell testify to the strengthening factor of faith. Field workouts follow technical talks by pros and coaches such as the St. Louis Hawks' Bob Pettit, L.S.U.'s Paul Dietzel and Minnesota's Murray Warmuth.

With headquarters in Kansas City, the inter-denominational Fellowship has not only inspired athletes at the Colorado and Wisconsin summer camps, but also over a million youths through talks across America.

'A Fraud And A Delusion'

By Raymond Moley

In the name of promoting the moral and intellectual interests of the nation's children, the Senate has passed, and the House may pass, an aid - to - education bill which embodies within itself hypocrisy and fraud.

This is not strange. Congress is an agent of government, and nothing has been so well established in history as the essential immorality of governments.

This applies to autocracies and democracies alike, monarchies and republics, congresses and kingdoms.

The makers of the Constitution knew of this lack of moral fiber in governments and government agencies. That is why they placed so many restraints upon the agencies of the federal government they created.

The aid - to - education bill sponsored by President Kennedy and passed by the Senate contains this promise to the states and local school systems:

"No department, agency, officer or employee of the United States shall exercise any direction, supervision or control over the policy determination, personnel, curriculum, program or instruction or the administration of any school system."

THIS DECLARATION is in Section 103 of the bill which passed the Senate.

But Section 106 of the bill says that states cannot reduce state and local expenditures; and, in fact, must keep up with the average annual rate of increase in the national effort in order to get their full allotment.

And who is to have the power to enforce this provision in Section 106? The United States Commissioner of Education, whose determination shall be conclusive.

This simply means that total school revenues within each state, exclusive of money returned (given) to the states by the federal government, must be increased every year whether the money is needed or not.

Now let us try to square this with the statement by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicofft hat "the cost of educating our children has become economically indigestible so far as state and local school districts are concerned."

That this statement is not ture can be proved by the very state which twice elected Ribicoff governor. It can be proved in any other state which can be mentioned.

It has been proved in the experience of the past five years, because the states have progressively raised more and more billions for their schools.

But let us look at the bill and the Ribicoff statement from another angle. If his statement is true, then the bill is demanding what the states cannot do.

Also let this fact be considered: Because of the great effort made by the states and the school districts to keep up with the increase in enrollment during the 1950s, their contribution to education was abnormal. In the 1960s, when the rate of increase in the public school enrollment will be considerably lower, the states and districts must, if they are to participate in the federal handouts, continue to raise this abnormal amount of money each year.

FOR EXAMPIE, school districts of the state of Oklahoma voted $155 million in school bonds, mostly for school construction. It well may be that building needs there will drop in the near future. But under the bill they will have not only to raise the same amount of money but keep up with the amount of federal grants.

It is true that the great brains which created this legislation realized that when Uncle Sam comes in with money, states will refuse to vote the money themselves. This will be true in any event. But since said brains believe that everything can be done by passing a law, they inserted the provision in Section 106 cited above. In so doing, they have provided a built-in escalator by which to increase the burden to the states and school districts for the indefinite future.

The said brains have also provided within the bill itself a provision which makes of the "no control" promise a fraud and a delusion.

Spare That Tree

By Truman Twill

Tree planting has been in the news more than usual, in connection with President Kennedy's sore back.

Is it too much to hope the publicity that has been given this form of horticultural do-gooding may get rid of some nonsense about tree-planting?

Contrary to a standard impression, planting a tree is not as blameless as mother-love. It is not a guarantee of life hereafter. Johnny Appleseed may have been a public benefactor, but he also was addled in the head.

Fully half of all the trees that get planted by horticultural do-gooders are planted in the wrong places for the wrong reasons. This means that for every two trees which get planted, some gilhooley is going to have to unplant one.

I have made no list of the trees I have planted, but I am painfully aware of the number of trees I have unplanted, which now has reached a total of 103. This does not include little twirps of trees that could be snatched up by the roots like pulling weeds.

My tree-unplanting has cost me gallons of liniment and enough aspirin tablets to pave a mile of four-lane highway.

And why, some nature lover asks, should anyone have to unplant trees? Simple. Because wobbleheads get carried away with the absurd misapprehension that tree-planting is an unmitigated blessing and sufficient unto itself.

So they plant trees in wrong places, forgetting that someday the little sapling is going to balloon into a towering behemoth whose tentacles will twist and slither in all directions and choke the life out of everything within reach.

Woodman, spare posterity!

Think twice before you plant that tree!

Down Through The Years

From The Review Files

Businessmen's Worry

By David Lawrence

Sound Economy Policies Still Lacking

Businessmen are beginning to worry about another recession — the one expected after the current recovery has run its course. The real worry about the long-range outlook arises from the failure of the Kennedy administration to come to grips with the things that are hurting the national economy. Instead, there are signs of a deep-seated hostility to business on the part of the administration which could retard recovery and make another recession inevitable.

David Lawrence

Many unsound policies are being advocated. Thus, the drastic changes proposed in the whole system of taxing American companies abroad could bring on a disruption of foreign trade and add to the difficulties of many of our allies.

Likewise, the stimulus that had been expected through a sensible program of tax incentives on depreciation allowances in connection with new plant and equipment has not materialized. Businessmen don't really know what to expect and many of the plans that should long ago have been under way to construct new plants haven't been launched as yet. All the benefits to employment that would have been derived from the heavy-goods industries if a broader policy on depreciation had been formulated have, therefore, not been forthcoming.

The inclination in the administration and in Congress to spend money and time on projects that do not assist the normal economic development of the country, but merely add to its deficits, has become pronounced.

Administration officials talk about spending $40 billion to develop American exploration of the moon and outer space but the down-to-earth requirements of a business recovery in America are being ignored.

More than $6 billion are to be spent by the government for housing but critics point out that in most areas government money on 40-year mortgages is not so much needed, since the rental space available has been steadily increasing in recent years.

ANOTHER MEASURE causing concern is the proposal to burden banks, savings and loan associations and businesses generally with the expensive task of deducting tax on dividends at the source.

This not only means hardship for small stockholders — especially retired persons — who may not get their normal income promptly hereafter, but it involves a tremendous amount of paper work for the companies themselves.

It is one of the most costly things in the way of tax collection ever suggested.

Oddly enough, it is being estimated by experts that, if the government did a better checking job on corporation stockholder lists and on payments made in dividends each year, it could readily collect from delinquent taxpayers.

Basically, business is worried about inflationary trends and the upward rise of prices brought on by higher wage levels. When an administration scorns a balanced budget and even suggests that to balance it is harmful then businessmen begin to be genuinely concerned about the future.

What is particularly disturbing is that, while the Kennedy administration started off with a friendly interest in the fate of business — and some benevolent phrases were used for a time — the indifference now to the problems faced by American business has become more and more noticeable in Washington.

There was a time when businessmen felt that the coalition of "conservative" Democrats and Republicans in Congress would prevent any serious disturbance of the business equilibrium by hostile legislation. But the coalition seems to have been weakened by defections in both parties.

THE TENDENCY to get something while the getting is good seems to have been noted with respect to individual members of Congress. The administration has been dispensing its favors to southern Democrats here and there and has been picking up votes for unsound programs.

These southerners have gone along with some inflationary measures, too. The net effect has been to notify American businessmen that, instead of friendliness to the private-enterprise system, the direction in Congress is toward socialization and inflation.

Back home the citizenry has not yet been awakened to what the damage can be to the economic system if the coalition of "conservatives" loses strength in Washington. It has been the single bulwark of the economy for more than a decade and a half, since the ending of World War II. If now a series of recessions ensues, it will be a long while before the country will make the progress that it could well have made if the economic system had been encouraged along sound lines.

Luncheon In Vienna

By David Wise

Some of the social and hitherto unreported notes from the summit meeting in Vienna may have provided more insight for President Kennedy into the mind of Nikita S. Khruschev than their talks about more central issues.

During luncheon at the Soviet Embassy on the second day of the summit meeting, for example, the name Rockefeller came up. Mr. Khrushchev hastened to explain that he did not literally mean—as he had indicated recently to Walter Lippmann—that the Rockefeller family "controlled" President Kennedy.

But, the Soviet premier added in dead earnestness, the rich classes in America, as exemplified by the Rockefellers, did control the President.

Mr. Kennedy, who may have choked on his caviar at this interesting theory of Mr. Khrushchev's, made an effort to dissuade his host of any such notion.

"Not one of those men contributed to my campaign," said the President to Mr. Khrushchev.

"Aha," said Mr. Khrushchev triumphantly, "they were very clever!"

This exchange, while not perhaps as weighty as those concerning Berlin, Laos and nuclear testing, nevertheless provided a fascinating glimpse into the Soviet premier's conception of the workings of American politics.

THE IDEA that the rich control presidents fits in nicely with Communist theory and as far as Mr. Khrushchev was concerned, that was that.

Another Summit sidelight, which also took place at lunch, was Khrushchev's half-hour discussion of corn production. The Soviet leader, who has a great interest in matters agricultural, conceded that the Soviet Union lags behind the United States in mechanization of produce corn and also in fertilizer production.

Khrushchev also dropped the fact that he is in fairly constant touch with Roswell Garst, the Iowa farmer whom the Soviet leader visited when he was in the United States in September, 1959.

Mr. Garst, it will be remembered, is the man who heaved corn cobs at the press when they trampled on his farm in a marvelously uninhibited display.

Perhaps the most interesting development of the summit also occurred against a gastronomical background, this time over lunch at the residence of American ambassador to Austria, H. Freeman Matthews.

The President, Mr. Khrushchev and their advisers were gathered around a seven-foot mahogany table in the dining room when the President rose to his feet, raised a glass of 1953 champagne and reeled off a three-minute toast to Mr. Khrushchev. The Soviet leader in response, raised his champagne glass and launched into a 10-minute toast to the President.

In the course of it, Mr. Khrushchev traced the history of President Eisenhower's planned visit to Russia in June, 1960, which was to have been in return for Mr. Khrushchev's September, 1959, visit to America.

KHRUSHCHEV then recalled how the trip had been called off after President Eisenhower took responsibility for sending the U2 spy plane over Soviet territory, although, Mr. Khrushchev insisted, he was certain that the President really knew nothing about the U2.

Finally, Mr. Khrushchev came to the point. It now would be possible, he said, for an American President to come to the Soviet Union. Should Mr. Kennedy decide to do so, he added, he would be very welcome.

American officials, declining to be placed on the spot by Mr. Khrushchev, later chose to describe this as something less than an "invitation" to the President to visit Moscow.

And despite their limited facilities, by today's standards, the universities were able to handle just about everybody who wanted to come to the campus and give college life a whirl.

BUT THAT DAY is gone, and probably never will return. Thousands more students apply every year to the six universities than they can crowd into their constantly growing classroom and livign space.

To get around the requirement that they accept any graduate of an accredited Ohio high school, the universities have been forced to take all they can and then sort out those who are not able, willing or prepared to do the work. This is not done willfully or meanly. Every student who gains admittance has full opportunity and usually more than one chance to prove his desire and his ability.

But the natural effect of such an approach is that hundreds of students enter the universities who should not have been there in the first place. Until the time comes when either they or the universities finally decide that they must go, these students occupy living space, utilize facilities and require the attention of teachers which could have been used to better advantage by other students either more willing or capable of acquiring college educations.

THERE IS an element of waste involved, in other words. It is a waste of tax money, educational resources and the individual students' time and money. There is a waste of potential talent among those students who were crowded out.

It would be more logical to try to screen out, fairly and carefully, those who do not belong in college before they get there. We think the logic is evident to the people of Ohio. A poll by Sen. Donald C. Steiner, R-Canton, for instance, showed 73 per cent of those replying favored entrance standards for the state universities.

Pre-admittance screening is not only logical, but necessary. Although the assembly apparently is not going to make the switch to it this time, the day is coming when it will have to.

'Slow Down, Live'

Any project charted in the interest of traffic safety has merit.

Such is the "Slow Down and Live" safety campaign which will be pressed in Hancock County during the summer. Directors of various law enforcement agencies, with the cooperation of veterans' posts and other organizations, are behind the drive.

Traffic checks will be set up at various times during the summer to help bring home the program to the average motorist.

A reduction in accidents seems almost certain to result from the campaign.

Guidance Center Would Fill A Need

Judge Louis Tobin has urged the establishment of a guidance center for Columbiana County to provide much-needed additional facilities for treatment of the mentally ill.

Of particular concern are the youngsters with mental problems. Because of lack of facilities, minor ailments among the young quite often grow into major ones.

The judge's appeal should be given the most serious thought by organizations, public officials and all others concerned with the county's over-all welfare.

With matching funds from the state, the cost of such a project should not be exorbitant, although the yearly investment would be sizable and much work involved before a center could become a reality.

No one can afford to shrug off the proposal with a "this-doesn't-concern-me" attitude. Mental illness can strike anywhere at any time. No one knows when he or she might be more than glad to have a guidance center available for treatment of a mental affliction of his own or a member of the family.

Here is a challenge, the opening of another door in the fight against a greatly misunderstood problem. It cannot be ignored.

Establishment of such a center could serve as a spur to other counties to follow suit and broaden the mental health program. That such broadening is needed can be found in the words of Judge Tobin, who terms Ohio "50 years behind the times in its mental health program".

Every possible consideration should be given to the establishment of a countywide guidance center. The local counseling center offers proof positive that such unit's serve a worthwhile purpose.

'Ham' Week

The friendly electronic world of the amateur shortwave radio enthusiast will get special attention with the observance of "Amateur Radio Week" in Ohio June 18-24.

Gov. Michael DiSalle, in proclaiming the observance, has called attention to the public service rendered by "hams" in providing emergency communications when natural disasters strike and in serving the nation's Civil Defense signal nets.

There are some 250 amateurs in the Columbiana, Beaver, Hancock County area enjoying a complex and challenging hobby, but ready to fill a vital communication link if needed. With their equipment and know-how, they are a part of the nation's important resources.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Just heard of a parent who disappeared on eve Father's Day leaving following note:

"Be back when Father's Day is over. Do not worry. This is only way. Burn greeting cards, neckties, shirts and other stuff bought for me as a result of a whim, salesmanship and one-day salute.

"If anybody phones just say I am gone with Tavern Week, Hot Dog Month, National Goopies Day, etc. Dad."

There are few days in year that make pop so "regusted." He knows it was established wholly because of a feeling he had a break coming after Mother's Day.

He feels silly about it. And he knows he will get the bill, if the gifts weren't send COD.

No thought that he will win any popularity contest during the other 364 days is held by him. It will be a break if he gets anything but complaints, criticism and hard looks.

Before and after Father's Day it is always "Aw, you're always so unreasonable," "Why can't I use the car this weekend?" and "Never mind telling me what you did when you were a boy" from the kids.

Mother comes through with "Okay, leave me and see if I care."

Daddy is a big disappointment to the family, except for 12 hours in June, and he knows it. A box of socks, some cigars and an imitation leather billfold won't soften him up. And for weeks before Father's Day he has been made miserable by one thing: The fear somebody will send him a pot of geraniums.

Dad is just the man who airs the dog, signs checks and has his pockets picked by custom.

He is a hero only around Christmas, Father's Day or when being asked to devote a hot weekend driving the whole darned family in heavy traffic for no reason other than to see if hotdogs are better in one shore resort than another. (All he wants is to have his armchair reupholstered.)

U.S. SECURITY AGENCY man, suspected as defecting to Russia, was found playing races at Delaware park. He was a signal decoder and probably kept getting a strange message which he thought said "On the nose."

Danger to U.S. security is indeed menaced if security agents get horse race fever. Once a man stops observing and checking on the enemy and begins studying what a horse may be up to, all is lost.

Such a security agent can get so mixed up he might even filed a report that "Laos Cease-Fire" is late scratch and that "Carry Back" may be planning to attack Dominican Republic.

Detroit thinks compact car may constitute 50 per cent of sales through 1961. If a man must bump his skull getting in and out of an auto, why pay $4,000 to $6,000 to do it?

Queen Elizabeth gave titles or signal honors to a dance hall leader, motorcycle racer and mailman. It's about time somebody, somewhere honored letter carriers, most of whom rate title of Knight of the Unfailing Mailbag or Duke of Epistles.

We like Frank Holeman's crack "Codes of ethics don't seem to include auto repair stations."

Remember away back when you could pick up phone and get a number at once merely by asking and never have to dial a set of football signals just to get information?

One benefit of a trip to moon would be to get away from hedge clipping and crabgrass.

Ed Murrow says the type of movies sent abroad to give picture of U.S. life need change. Maybe most of the violence all over the earth is due to those cowboy and gangster films.

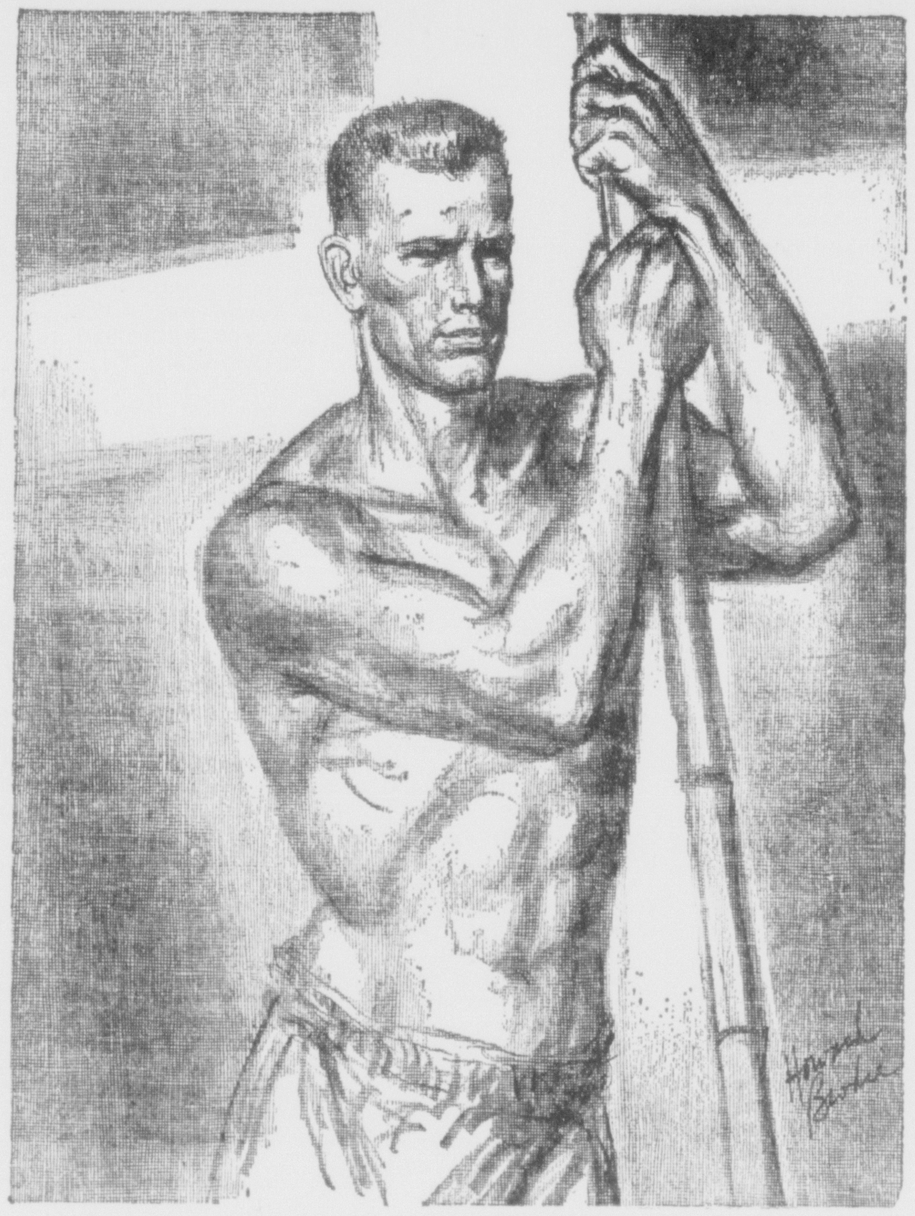
Lyndon Johnson invited a Pakistan camel driver to visit the United States and a Pakistan reporter says he expects to be put up at Waldorf. Fair warning: No tower suite for the camel!

The word "tabloid" was originally coined by a London, England, firm, and was applied to a preparation of drugs in a concentrated and condensed form. Although the term is a copyrighted trademark of that particular firm, it is now widely used to designate anything concise or condensed, as a "tabloid newspaper."

Rome was called "The Eternal City," even among the ancients. It was so called because the people thought that no matter what happened to the rest of the world, no matter how many other empires might rise and fall, Rome would go on forever.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie



Young athletes strengthen their spirits and skills at the summer conferences of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Their day begins with a devotion at breakfast, followed by sessions of "Inspiration and perspiration." Athletes huddle to discuss Christian life, while coaches study ways to impart spiritual values. Greats such as Branch Rickey, Otto Graham and George Kell testify to the strengthening factor of faith. Field workouts follow technical talks by pros and coaches such as the St. Louis Hawks' Bob Pettit, L.S.U.'s Paul Dietzel and Minnesota's Murray Warmuth.

With headquarters in Kansas City, the inter-denominational Fellowship has not only inspired athletes at the Colorado and Wisconsin summer camps, but also over a million youths through talks across America.

'A Fraud And A Delusion'

By Raymond Moley

In the name of promoting the moral and intellectual interests of the nation's children, the Senate has passed, and the House may pass, an aid - to - education bill which embodies within itself hypocrisy and fraud.

This is not strange. Congress is an agent of government, and nothing has been so well established in history as the essential immorality of governments.

This applies to autocracies and democracies alike, monarchies and republics, congresses and kingdoms.

The makers of the Constitution knew of this lack of moral fiber in governments and government agencies. That is why they placed so many restraints upon the agencies of the federal government they created.

The aid - to - education bill sponsored by President Kennedy and passed by the Senate contains this promise to the states and local school systems:

"No department, agency, officer or employee of the United States shall exercise any direction, supervision or control over the policy determination, personnel, curriculum, program or instruction or the administration of any school system."

THIS DECLARATION is in Section 103 of the bill which passed the Senate.

But Section 106 of the bill says that states cannot reduce state and local expenditures; and, in fact, must keep up with the average annual rate of increase in the national effort in order to get their full allotment.

And who is to have the power to enforce this provision in Section 106? The United States Commissioner of Education, whose determination shall be conclusive.

This simply means that total school revenues within each state, exclusive of money returned (given) to the states by the federal government, must be increased every year whether the money is needed or not.

Now let us try to square this with the statement by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicofft hat "the cost of educating our children has become economically indigestible so far as state and local school districts are concerned."

That this statement is not ture can be proved by the very state which twice elected Ribicoff governor. It can be proved in any other state which can be mentioned.

It has been proved in the experience of the past five years, because the states have progressively raised more and more billions for their schools.

But let us look at the bill and the Ribicoff statement from another angle. If his statement is true, then the bill is demanding what the states cannot do.

Also let this fact be considered: Because of the great effort made by the states and the school districts to keep up with the increase in enrollment during the 1950s, their contribution to education was abnormal. In the 1960s, when the rate of increase in the public school enrollment will be considerably lower, the states and districts must, if they are to participate in the federal handouts, continue to raise this abnormal amount of money each year.

FOR EXAMPIE, school districts of the state of Oklahoma voted $155 million in school bonds, mostly for school construction. It well may be that building needs there will drop in the near future. But under the bill they will have not only to raise the same amount of money but keep up with the amount of federal grants.

It is true that the great brains which created this legislation realized that when Uncle Sam comes in with money, states will refuse to vote the money themselves. This will be true in any event. But since said brains believe that everything can be done by passing a law, they inserted the provision in Section 106 cited above. In so doing, they have provided a built-in escalator by which to increase the burden to the states and school districts for the indefinite future.

The said brains have also provided within the bill itself a provision which makes of the "no control" promise a fraud and a delusion.

Spare That Tree

By Truman Twill

Tree planting has been in the news more than usual, in connection with President Kennedy's sore back.

Is it too much to hope the publicity that has been given this form of horticultural do-gooding may get rid of some nonsense about tree-planting?

Contrary to a standard impression, planting a tree is not as blameless as mother-love. It is not a guarantee of life hereafter. Johnny Appleseed may have been a public benefactor, but he also was addled in the head.

Fully half of all the trees that get planted by horticultural do-gooders are planted in the wrong places for the wrong reasons. This means that for every two trees which get planted, some gilhooley is going to have to unplant one.

I have made no list of the trees I have planted, but I am painfully aware of the number of trees I have unplanted, which now has reached a total of 103. This does not include little twirps of trees that could be snatched up by the roots like pulling weeds.

My tree-unplanting has cost me gallons of liniment and enough aspirin tablets to pave a mile of four-lane highway.

And why, some nature lover asks, should anyone have to unplant trees? Simple. Because wobbleheads get carried away with the absurd misapprehension that tree-planting is an unmitigated blessing and sufficient unto itself.

So they plant trees in wrong places, forgetting that someday the little sapling is going to balloon into a towering behemoth whose tentacles will twist and slither in all directions and choke the life out of everything within reach.

Woodman, spare posterity!

Think twice before you plant that tree!

Businessmen's Worry

By David Lawrence

Sound Economy Policies Still Lacking

Businessmen are beginning to worry about another recession — the one expected after the current recovery has run its course. The real worry about the long-range outlook arises from the failure of the Kennedy administration to come to grips with the things that are hurting the national economy. Instead, there are signs of a deep-seated hostility to business on the part of the administration which could retard recovery and make another recession inevitable.

David Lawrence

Many unsound policies are being advocated. Thus, the drastic changes proposed in the whole system of taxing American companies abroad could bring on a disruption of foreign trade and add to the difficulties of many of our allies.

Likewise, the stimulus that had been expected through a sensible program of tax incentives on depreciation allowances in connection with new plant and equipment has not materialized. Businessmen don't really know what to expect and many of the plans that should long ago have been under way to construct new plants haven't been launched as yet. All the benefits to employment that would have been derived from the heavy-goods industries if a broader policy on depreciation had been formulated have, therefore, not been forthcoming.

The inclination in the administration and in Congress to spend money and time on projects that do not assist the normal economic development of the country, but merely add to its deficits, has become pronounced.

Administration officials talk about spending $40 billion to develop American exploration of the moon and outer space but the down-to-earth requirements of a business recovery in America are being ignored.

More than $6 billion are to be spent by the government for housing but critics point out that in most areas government money on 40-year mortgages is not so much needed, since the rental space available has been steadily increasing in recent years.

ANOTHER MEASURE causing concern is the proposal to burden banks, savings and loan associations and businesses generally with the expensive task of deducting tax on dividends at the source.

This not only means hardship for small stockholders — especially retired persons — who may not get their normal income promptly hereafter, but it involves a tremendous amount of paper work for the companies themselves.

It is one of the most costly things in the way of tax collection ever suggested.

Oddly enough, it is being estimated by experts that, if the government did a better checking job on corporation stockholder lists and on payments made in dividends each year, it could readily collect from delinquent taxpayers.

Basically, business is worried about inflationary trends and the upward rise of prices brought on by higher wage levels. When an administration scorns a balanced budget and even suggests that to balance it is harmful then businessmen begin to be genuinely concerned about the future.

What is particularly disturbing is that, while the Kennedy administration started off with a friendly interest in the fate of business — and some benevolent phrases were used for a time — the indifference now to the problems faced by American business has become more and more noticeable in Washington.

There was a time when businessmen felt that the coalition of "conservative" Democrats and Republicans in Congress would prevent any serious disturbance of the business equilibrium by hostile legislation. But the coalition seems to have been weakened by defections in both parties.

THE TENDENCY to get something while the getting is good seems to have been noted with respect to individual members of Congress. The administration has been dispensing its favors to southern Democrats here and there and has been picking up votes for unsound programs.

These southerners have gone along with some inflationary measures, too. The net effect has been to notify American businessmen that, instead of friendliness to the private-enterprise system, the direction in Congress is toward socialization and inflation.

Back home the citizenry has not yet been awakened to what the damage can be to the economic system if the coalition of "conservatives" loses strength in Washington. It has been the single bulwark of the economy for more than a decade and a half, since the ending of World War II. If now a series of recessions ensues, it will be a long while before the country will make the progress that it could well have made if the economic system had been encouraged along sound lines.

Luncheon In Vienna

By David Wise

Some of the social and hitherto unreported notes from the summit meeting in Vienna may have provided more insight for President Kennedy into the mind of Nikita S. Khruschev than their talks about more central issues.

During luncheon at the Soviet Embassy on the second day of the summit meeting, for example, the name Rockefeller came up. Mr. Khrushchev hastened to explain that he did not literally mean—as he had indicated recently to Walter Lippmann—that the Rockefeller family "controlled" President Kennedy.

But, the Soviet premier added in dead earnestness, the rich classes in America, as exemplified by the Rockefellers, did control the President.

Mr. Kennedy, who may have choked on his caviar at this interesting theory of Mr. Khrushchev's, made an effort to dissuade his host of any such notion.

"Not one of those men contributed to my campaign," said the President to Mr. Khrushchev.

"Aha," said Mr. Khrushchev triumphantly, "they were very clever!"

This exchange, while not perhaps as weighty as those concerning Berlin, Laos and nuclear testing, nevertheless provided a fascinating glimpse into the Soviet premier's conception of the workings of American politics.

THE IDEA that the rich control presidents fits in nicely with Communist theory and as far as Mr. Khrushchev was concerned, that was that.

Another Summit sidelight, which also took place at lunch, was Khrushchev's half-hour discussion of corn production. The Soviet leader, who has a great interest in matters agricultural, conceded that the Soviet Union lags behind the United States in mechanization of produce corn and also in fertilizer production.

Khrushchev also dropped the fact that he is in fairly constant touch with Roswell Garst, the Iowa farmer whom the Soviet leader visited when he was in the United States in September, 1959.

Mr. Garst, it will be remembered, is the man who heaved corn cobs at the press when they trampled on his farm in a marvelously uninhibited display.

Perhaps the most interesting development of the summit also occurred against a gastronomical background, this time over lunch at the residence of American ambassador to Austria, H. Freeman Matthews.

The President, Mr. Khrushchev and their advisers were gathered around a seven-foot mahogany table in the dining room when the President rose to his feet, raised a glass of 1953 champagne and reeled off a three-minute toast to Mr. Khrushchev. The Soviet leader in response, raised his champagne glass and launched into a 10-minute toast to the President.

In the course of it, Mr. Khrushchev traced the history of President Eisenhower's planned visit to Russia in June, 1960, which was to have been in return for Mr. Khrushchev's September, 1959, visit to America.

KHRUSHCHEV then recalled how the trip had been called off after President Eisenhower took responsibility for sending the U2 spy plane over Soviet territory, although, Mr. Khrushchev insisted, he was certain that the President really knew nothing about the U2.

Finally, Mr. Khrushchev came to the point. It now would be possible, he said, for an American President to come to the Soviet Union. Should Mr. Kennedy decide to do so, he added, he would be very welcome.

American officials, declining to be placed on the spot by Mr. Khrushchev, later chose to describe this as something less than an "invitation" to the President to visit Moscow.

The Comeback Story Of One Man

This is a comeback story. Bill Jones (let's call him that) was the youngest man ever to become vice president of the big bank in his city. He was slated a sure-fire successor to the president. Then at age 47 he was fired for excessive drinking. On down he went until he landed in an institution for rehabilitation of alcoholics.

DR. PEALE

Here he found himself in highly colorful company. One man with whom he struck up a friendship of the misery-loves-company variety declared himself to be the finest hobo our era ever produced; he had enjoyed free transportation many times on the railroad of which Bill Jones had formerly been a director.

Bill was assigned to a dish washing job. The lady in charge said: "My father is a section hand on your railroad. You are even a poor dish washer, but I'll make you learn to do it right!"

BILL WAS IN the shower room one morning with about 20 other inmates, when several of these men began proudly comparing tattoo marks with which they were embellished and boasting to each other of the time they had served in penitentiaries.

Something happened to Bill. He turned in his uniform and notified the people in charge that he was leaving. They received this news with grave concern — told him he was making a mistake. But the society of derelicts had brought him to his senses.

Boarding a train for the small up-country town where his parents lived, he reflected on the mess he had made of his life. His most loyal friends had become disgusted with him. His wife had brought suit for divorce. He was flat broke.

Then there came to his mind the words: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and he shall bring it to pass." He could not remember where or when he had heard these words. Much later he learned they are the 5th verse of the 37th Psalm.

For the next few months Bill lived quietly at his parents' home. Each day he took a solitary 12-mile walk on the one dirt road still left in that township. This road led to the foot of a steep hill covered with beautiful pines. Here he would sit for an hour or so and whittle on white pine. During these months he read books on faith and positive thinking. He meditated, trying to chart a course of a new life.

THE FIRST need, business-wise, would be to find a bank that would hire a man with a past like his. Bill decided his chances would be best in a town several hundred miles away, where boom conditions at that time would tend to "soften orthodox views" concerning a man's history. There he obtained a position with a fairly sizeable bank. His wife, having dropped the divorce suit, joined him.

He knew that to make a real comeback at his age he would have to do something out of the ordinary. There were two wealthy, influential men in that area from whom, Bill was informed, it would be next to impossible to get accounts. He told his wife he would have accounts from these men within a year. She said she thought he was losing his mind. He replied, "My faith is going to do it."

Some months later one of the two prospects opened the largest account ever obtained for the bank and shortly thereafter the other one opened a fat account for his organization. Bill was promoted to a high position. But the best was still to come.

"I never thought," he says, "that I would ever get back to a good position in my own city, where I had literally become a tramp. But I prayed that the impossible would happen and it did." Before long he was offered an executive vice-presidency in the bank back home.

In obeying that inner call to commit himself to the Lord and trust in Him, Bill Jones had set his feet on the path leading to a new life. This is another amazing illustration that "The things which are impossible with men are possible with God, and that a comeback power is in everyone.

The Comeback Story Of One Man

This is a comeback story. Bill Jones (let's call him that) was the youngest man ever to become vice president of the big bank in his city. He was slated a sure-fire successor to the president. Then at age 47 he was fired for excessive drinking. On down he went until he landed in an institution for rehabilitation of alcoholics.

DR. PEALE

Here he found himself in highly colorful company. One man with whom he struck up a friendship of the misery-loves-company variety declared himself to be the finest hobo our era ever produced; he had enjoyed free transportation many times on the railroad of which Bill Jones had formerly been a director.

Bill was assigned to a dish washing job. The lady in charge said: "My father is a section hand on your railroad. You are even a poor dish washer, but I'll make you learn to do it right!"

BILL WAS IN the shower room one morning with about 20 other inmates, when several of these men began proudly comparing tattoo marks with which they were embellished and boasting to each other of the time they had served in penitentiaries.

Something happened to Bill. He turned in his uniform and notified the people in charge that he was leaving. They received this news with grave concern — told him he was making a mistake. But the society of derelicts had brought him to his senses.

Boarding a train for the small up-country town where his parents lived, he reflected on the mess he had made of his life. His most loyal friends had become disgusted with him. His wife had brought suit for divorce. He was flat broke.

Then there came to his mind the words: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and he shall bring it to pass." He could not remember where or when he had heard these words. Much later he learned they are the 5th verse of the 37th Psalm.

For the next few months Bill lived quietly at his parents' home. Each day he took a solitary 12-mile walk on the one dirt road still left in that township. This road led to the foot of a steep hill covered with beautiful pines. Here he would sit for an hour or so and whittle on white pine. During these months he read books on faith and positive thinking. He meditated, trying to chart a course of a new life.

THE FIRST need, business-wise, would be to find a bank that would hire a man with a past like his. Bill decided his chances would be best in a town several hundred miles away, where boom conditions at that time would tend to "soften orthodox views" concerning a man's history. There he obtained a position with a fairly sizeable bank. His wife, having dropped the divorce suit, joined him.

He knew that to make a real comeback at his age he would have to do something out of the ordinary. There were two wealthy, influential men in that area from whom, Bill was informed, it would be next to impossible to get accounts. He told his wife he would have accounts from these men within a year. She said she thought he was losing his mind. He replied, "My faith is going to do it."

Some months later one of the two prospects opened the largest account ever obtained for the bank and shortly thereafter the other one opened a fat account for his organization. Bill was promoted to a high position. But the best was still to come.

"I never thought," he says, "that I would ever get back to a good position in my own city, where I had literally become a tramp. But I prayed that the impossible would happen and it did." Before long he was offered an executive vice-presidency in the bank back home.

In obeying that inner call to commit himself to the Lord and trust in Him, Bill Jones had set his feet on the path leading to a new life. This is another amazing illustration that "The things which are impossible with men are possible with God, and that a comeback power is in everyone.

Brownies Camp Concludes With Show Of Talent

A talent show was held Friday to conclude this week's Brownie Day Camp at the Little House in Dixonville. "The American Indian" was the theme.

Seventy Brownie girls attended the camp, while there were 18 adult leaders and 10 senior aides.

About 50 parents were present for the program. Handicrafts were displayed, including totem poles, tomahawks, head bands, and other Indian items, made during the week.

Among those present were Mrs. David Beatty, president of the Girl Scout Council; Mrs. Joseph Prager, chairman of the training committee, and Mrs. Dan Henderson, field director.

Mrs. Russell Smith is camp chairman, and Mrs. John Myler, director.

Jill Myler, a senior aide, served as mistress of ceremonies for the talent program which featured singing, dancing, skits and baton twirling by the girls.

It will include presentations by the Nursery, Beginner, Primary and Junior Classes and a skit, "Memory Makes the Difference," will follow.

Handcraft work will be viewed by the congregation afterwards.

Next meeting is July 5 with Mrs. Shirley Grafton.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Isaiah	55	6-13
Monday	I Kings	19	9-18
Tuesday	Psalms	37	23-29
Wednesday	Psalms	37	34-40
Thursday	I Peter	1	3-9
Friday	I Peter	1	13-21
Saturday	Ephesians	6	10-18

This is life! On top of the world . . . then lost in the depths.

For a child it can be exciting sport. For a grownup it is bitter reality.

No other resource in life is better geared to this frightening swing than religion. For centuries it has provided purpose for our summits, and courage for our valleys.

Don't let some imagined sense of the inevitable chain you to the pendulum of fate. The Church, its message rooted in the life of Jesus Christ, offers all men a Faith for climax . . . and for crisis.

Attend church next Sunday. Let the love of God invade your defeats . . . add opportunity to your victories.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses

Monday	I Kings	19	9-18
Tuesday	Psalms	37	23-29
Wednesday	Psalms	37	34-40

This is life! On top of the world . . . then lost in the depths.

For a child it can be exciting sport. For a grownup it is bitter reality.

No other resource in life is better geared to this frightening swing than religion. For centuries it has provided purpose for our summits, and courage for our valleys.

Don't let some imagined sense of the inevitable chain you to the pendulum of fate. The Church, its message rooted in the life of Jesus Christ, offers all men a Faith for climax . . . and for crisis.

Attend church next Sunday. Let the love of God invade your defeats . . . add opportunity to your victories.

A's 'Bonus Baby' Unravels 3-Hitter

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lew Krausse Jr., whose father pitched briefly for the A's 30 years ago, stole the spotlight from the American League pennant race Friday night. The 18-year-old right-hander, a $125,000 Kansas City bonus baby, pitched a three-hit shutout in his first game as a pro for a 4-0 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

Detroit knocked New York out of the lead, beating the Yankees 4-2, and climbed back into a first place tie with the Cleveland Indians, who beat Baltimore 3-1. The Yankees, now second, trail by one game. Boston beat Washington 14-9, and Minnesota defeated Chicago 6-1, ending the White Sox' winning streak at seven games.

Young Krausse went to work less than two weeks after graduating from Chester, Pa., high school. The Angels' three hits, by LeRoy Thomas, Steve Bilko and Ken Hamlin, came in the second, seventh and eighth innings. The A's scored the decisive run on Norm Siebern's double in the fourth. Ken McBride (5-5) was the loser as the Angels dropped their ninth in a row.

Detroit rapped eight hits, four by Billy Bruton, and was helped by five Yankee errors in beating Bill Stafford (4-3), who had won four in a row. It was only the third loss in 16 games for New York, and Bruton's single and Al Kaline's double put it away in the third inning. Phil Regan (7-2) was the winner. He allowed six hits, one a two-run homer by Bill Skowron in the fifth.

Southpaw Dick Stigman paired with reliever Barry Latman for a four-hitter for the Indians and singled home the winning run in the fifth off Oriole loser Chuck Estrada (4-5).

Eight runs in the fourth inning did it for the Red Sox and beat Tom Sturdivant (2-5). Carl Yastrzemski, with a two-run double, and Vic Wertz, with a two-run single, had the key hits in the rally. Fornieles (3-3) was the winner in relief. There were 26 walks in the game, four shy of the record.

Right-hander Pedro Ramos (4-8) after losing six in a row, beat the White Sox with eight innings of four-hit, shutout relief. Bob Allison drove in three runs for the Twins, and Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew homered. Don Larsen (2-1) was the loser for the Sox, who scored without a hit in the first off lefty Danny McDevitt.

Tense Field Set For U.S. Open Windup

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — A tense field of 57 awaited the "moment of truth" in today's double-round windup of the 61st U.S. Open Golf Tournament after a royal head rolling Friday.

The two-stroke halfway leaders at 1 under-par 139, Bob Rosburg and Doug Sanders, generally were regarded as sitting ducks in the battle for the game's top title and a $14,000 winner's swag.

Friday's second-round produced a brisk pummeling of Oakland Hills' 6,907-yard, par 35-35—70 course. The big question was whether defending champion Arnold Palmer—10 strokes off the pace — could match his come-from-behind victory strike last year.

But two sentimental favorites—four-time winner Ben Hogan and Sam Snead—were threats at 143, four strokes behind.

Palmer, at Denver's Cherry Hills last year, was eight strokes behind after 36 holes and seven strokes behind the 54-hole leader, Mike Souchak, entering the final round. Palmer came up with a rousing 65 to win with 280, second low in Open history.

Palmer now has 46 players ahead of him, including six tied for third at 141, two strokes off the pace. The sextet includes Doug Ford, Eric Monti, Bobby Brue, Gardner Dickinson, Al Geiberger, and Gene Littler.

Palmer made the exact halfway cutoff point with 74-75—149.

Biting the dust beyond the cutoff mark Friday were former Open champions Ed Furgol (1954); Julous Boros (1952); Cary Middlecoff (1949); and Lew Worsham (1947). Four-time British Open champ, Peter Thomson of Australia, also was a casualty at 153.

The year's leading PGA money-winner, Gary Player of South Africa, also was in with 147.

Only three strokes off the pace at 142 were two Australians, Bruce Crampton and Kel Nagle, and American pros Bob Harris and Bob Goalby.

The top amateur after 36 holes was husky Jack Nicklaus, whose 69 moved him into position to make the same final bid he did last year in finishing runnerup to Palmer.

Two Willoughby, Ohio, men were a stroke apart after the second round. Pro Bob Shave Jr. had 73-75—148, and amateur Ed Meister Jr. had 78-71—149.

Dow Finsterwald, the Athens, Ohio, native playing out of Jupiter, Fla., was near the top of the scoring list with 72-71—143.

YANKEE SKIPPER GETS HOT. Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees doesn't appear too pleased with second base umpire Joe Linsalata's decision in the 7th inning of the Detroit-New York game Friday night at Detroit. Hauk protested and flung his cap to the ground after Linsalata called Bill Skowron (14) out at second. Houk was ejected from the game. (UPI Telephoto)

2 Detroit U. Stars Ousted In Cage Fix

DETROIT (AP) —The spreading basketball scandals touched the Motor City when the University of Detroit announced dismissal of two cage stars Friday.

The school said the two, Charlie North and John Morgan, were dismissed "because of their admitted contacts with individuals involved in the nationwide basketball conspiracy."

The two Detroit names bring to 33 the number of players from 18 school coast to coast involved in the scandal, which broke March 17. Since gamblers are handicapped by the so-called point spread in basketball, the players allegedly have been approached about controlling the victory margin.

The very Rev. Laurence V. Britt, S. J., president of the university, said in a statement:

"It is the understanding of university officials that both players appeared voluntarily before the New York grand jury, at the request of the district attorney, and agreed to cooperate fully as witnesses. Further details are a matter of grand jury record and must await announcement by proper authorities."

A spokesman for Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said in New York there would be no immediate comment on the Detroit players.

North, 21, a 6-5 player who scored 458 points, an average of 17.6 per game, said "I wouldn't like to say anything because I'm just a witness before the grand jury."

Cards Jar Bucs; Cubs Whip Giants

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milwaukee knocked Los Angeles out of the National League lead by beating the Dodgers 2-1 Friday night behind the five-hit pitching of Lew Burdette, who also hit a home run. Cincinnati moved back on top with a 4-1 victory at Philadelphia.

San Francisco, whipped 12-6 by the Chicago Cubs, fell a game behind in third place. St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 5-2.

Burdette (5-5) walked one and struck out five, blanking the Dodgers on four hits until Charlie Neal homered in the seventh inning. The Braves, four games below .500 in sixth place, collected eight hits and beat southpaw Sandy Koufax (9-3) with a deciding run in the seventh on four walks, the last by reliever Larry Sherry. Burdette's homer came in the fifth off Koufax, who had won six in a row since May 16—when he lost to Milwaukee 5-3.

The Reds broke loose for all four runs in the eighth off loser Johnny Buzhardt (2-7) and relievers Ken Lehman and Frank Sullivan. Consecutive singles by Gordie Coleman, Gene Freese and Wally Post brought in the first run, for a 1-1 tie, and pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch then broke it up with a double off Lehman. Ken Hunt (7-3) was the winner, pairing with reliever Jim Brosnan for a three-hitter.

A grand-slam homer by Billy Williams off loser Billy Loes (4-4) gave the Cubs a 5-1 lead in the third inning at San Francisco. They roughed up Sam Jones, Jim Duffalo and Jack Sanford for the other seven runs on eight hits, one a two-run homer by George Altman. Bob Anderson (4-5) won it in relief. Both clubs had 12 hits, with Felipe Alou, pinch-hitter Jim Marshall and Sanford socking solo homers for the Giants, who had won four in a row.

The Cardinals broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the seventh off southpaw Harvey Haddix (4-2). Consecutive bases-loaded singles by Tim McCarver and winning right-hander Bob Gibson (4-3) brought in the first two runs and sewed it up.

Chamberlain Fans 12; Cox-Merchants Romp

Steady Dick Chamberlain chalked up a dozen strikeouts and his teammates wielded loaded bats as Cox-Merchants trounced Columbiana, 17-2, in a County-City League fray Friday at Patterson Field.

The bespectacled Chamberlain, a league veteran, limited Columbiana to four hits and was in complete control all the way in besting Brooks of Columbiana.

Manager John Andrason's Cox-Merchants belted base hits left and right to score runs in every inning. Triples by shortstop Reider, and third-sacker Campbell high-lighted the 13-hit asault of the city entry.

Reider and Campbell turned sluggers by collecting tree hits for the evening, while speedy outfielder Bob Gessford belted a pair of singles.

Chamberlain gave up singles to Grant Sloan, the Fritch brothers and Brooks.

Brooks walked five and struck out six in being charged with the loss. He was relieved by Allen.

Vets Glass, Burbicks And Medics Win

Veteran Plate Glass and Burbick's enhanced their first place standings in Little League action Friday with decisive victories.

With Danny Standley chalking up his third victory of the season on the mound, Veteran Glass whipped Golden Star, 7-3. Standley twirled a three-hitter and whiffed four batters.

Paul DeGarmo and Marvin Six with two hits and Mike McVay's two-run homer sparked the nine-hit attack of Veteran Glass, the unbeaten leader in the American Division.

Standley yielded singles to Gary Klembara, Butch Beadnell and Bill Cunningham of Golden Star. The league leaders committed five errors but still won handily.

Burbick's, the unconquered leader of the National Division, walloped Chester Legion, 8-0, with Mike Hughes hurling the victory.

Jay Welch of Burbick's observed his birthday by belting a homerun. Eddie Golden doubled and Mike Hughes tripled for the winners. Brewer started for Chester Legion which showed a six-hit attack.

In one other game, Medic's defeated McBurney's, 8-1, as Jim Jones fanned eight in going the distance to earn the pitching victory. He bested Bernard Lovejoy of McBurney's who fanned three.

Buzz Arrington showed a double and two singles for Medic's, in second place in the National Division. Phil Talbott socked a pair of doubles in the 12-hit attack of Medic's. For McBurney's, Dave Pridemore, J. Kidder and B. Marino stroked singles.

Litten Hurler Stars In Win

Young Johnson pitched and batted league-leading Litten Motors to a 10-7 victory over Burbick's in an error-plagued Pony League tilt Friday evening at Dopler field.

Striking out 11 over the seven-inning route, Johnson yielded but seven hits on the mound, and smashed a double and two singles at the plate to add a personal touch to the triumph.

The victory entrenched Litten's more firmly in first place with an unblemished 7-0 record. Burbick's dropped to fourth with a 3-5 chart.

Litten's plated 10 runs in six innings to take a commanding lead then was forced to repel a seventh-inning rally by Burbick's. The losers pushed across four runs in their half of the seventh to come relatively close to tying.

Null, who struck out five and walked four, was charged with the defeat. He gave up 12 hits to the Litten sluggers, but doubled and hit a single to lead Burbick's seven-hit attack.

Each team committed eight errors. Burhart, shortstop for Littens, starred in the field with two standout plays. Other extra base hits were belted by Cashdollar and Huddlestum of Litten's, both doubles.

Cincinnati Regains NL Top As Braves Jolt Dodgers

A's 'Bonus Baby' Unravels 3-Hitter

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lew Krausse Jr., whose father pitched briefly for the A's 30 years ago, stole the spotlight from the American League pennant race Friday night. The 18-year-old right-hander, a $125,000 Kansas City bonus baby, pitched a three-hit shutout in his first game as a pro for a 4-0 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

Detroit knocked New York out of the lead, beating the Yankees 4-2, and climbed back into a first place tie with the Cleveland Indians, who beat Baltimore 3-1. The Yankees, now second, trail by one game. Boston beat Washington 14-9, and Minnesota defeated Chicago 6-1, ending the White Sox' winning streak at seven games.

Young Krausse went to work less than two weeks after graduating from Chester, Pa., high school. The Angels' three hits, by LeRoy Thomas, Steve Bilko and Ken Hamlin, came in the second, seventh and eighth innings. The A's scored the decisive run on Norm Siebern's double in the fourth. Ken McBride (5-5) was the loser as the Angels dropped their ninth in a row.

Detroit rapped eight hits, four by Billy Bruton, and was helped by five Yankee errors in beating Bill Stafford (4-3), who had won four in a row. It was only the third loss in 16 games for New York, and Bruton's single and Al Kaline's double put it away in the third inning. Phil Regan (7-2) was the winner. He allowed six hits, one a two-run homer by Bill Skowron in the fifth.

Southpaw Dick Stigman paired with reliever Barry Latman for a four-hitter for the Indians and singled home the winning run in the fifth off Oriole loser Chuck Estrada (4-5).

Eight runs in the fourth inning did it for the Red Sox and beat Tom Sturdivant (2-5). Carl Yastrzemski, with a two-run double, and Vic Wertz, with a two-run single, had the key hits in the rally. Fornieles (3-3) was the winner in relief. There were 26 walks in the game, four shy of the record.

Right-hander Pedro Ramos (4-8) after losing six in a row, beat the White Sox with eight innings of four-hit, shutout relief. Bob Allison drove in three runs for the Twins, and Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew homered. Don Larsen (2-1) was the loser for the Sox, who scored without a hit in the first off lefty Danny McDevitt.

Tense Field Set For U.S. Open Windup

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — A tense field of 57 awaited the "moment of truth" in today's double-round windup of the 61st U.S. Open Golf Tournament after a royal head rolling Friday.

The two-stroke halfway leaders at 1 under-par 139, Bob Rosburg and Doug Sanders, generally were regarded as sitting ducks in the battle for the game's top title and a $14,000 winner's swag.

Friday's second-round produced a brisk pummeling of Oakland Hills' 6,907-yard, par 35-35—70 course. The big question was whether defending champion Arnold Palmer—10 strokes off the pace — could match his come-from-behind victory strike last year.

But two sentimental favorites—four-time winner Ben Hogan and Sam Snead—were threats at 143, four strokes behind.

Palmer, at Denver's Cherry Hills last year, was eight strokes behind after 36 holes and seven strokes behind the 54-hole leader, Mike Souchak, entering the final round. Palmer came up with a rousing 65 to win with 280, second low in Open history.

Palmer now has 46 players ahead of him, including six tied for third at 141, two strokes off the pace. The sextet includes Doug Ford, Eric Monti, Bobby Brue, Gardner Dickinson, Al Geiberger, and Gene Littler.

Palmer made the exact halfway cutoff point with 74-75—149.

Biting the dust beyond the cutoff mark Friday were former Open champions Ed Furgol (1954); Julous Boros (1952); Cary Middlecoff (1949); and Lew Worsham (1947). Four-time British Open champ, Peter Thomson of Australia, also was a casualty at 153.

The year's leading PGA money-winner, Gary Player of South Africa, also was in with 147.

Only three strokes off the pace at 142 were two Australians, Bruce Crampton and Kel Nagle, and American pros Bob Harris and Bob Goalby.

The top amateur after 36 holes was husky Jack Nicklaus, whose 69 moved him into position to make the same final bid he did last year in finishing runnerup to Palmer.

Two Willoughby, Ohio, men were a stroke apart after the second round. Pro Bob Shave Jr. had 73-75—148, and amateur Ed Meister Jr. had 78-71—149.

Dow Finsterwald, the Athens, Ohio, native playing out of Jupiter, Fla., was near the top of the scoring list with 72-71—143.

YANKEE SKIPPER GETS HOT. Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees doesn't appear too pleased with second base umpire Joe Linsalata's decision in the 7th inning of the Detroit-New York game Friday night at Detroit. Hauk protested and flung his cap to the ground after Linsalata called Bill Skowron (14) out at second. Houk was ejected from the game. (UPI Telephoto)

2 Detroit U. Stars Ousted In Cage Fix

DETROIT (AP) —The spreading basketball scandals touched the Motor City when the University of Detroit announced dismissal of two cage stars Friday.

The school said the two, Charlie North and John Morgan, were dismissed "because of their admitted contacts with individuals involved in the nationwide basketball conspiracy."

The two Detroit names bring to 33 the number of players from 18 school coast to coast involved in the scandal, which broke March 17. Since gamblers are handicapped by the so-called point spread in basketball, the players allegedly have been approached about controlling the victory margin.

The very Rev. Laurence V. Britt, S. J., president of the university, said in a statement:

"It is the understanding of university officials that both players appeared voluntarily before the New York grand jury, at the request of the district attorney, and agreed to cooperate fully as witnesses. Further details are a matter of grand jury record and must await announcement by proper authorities."

A spokesman for Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said in New York there would be no immediate comment on the Detroit players.

North, 21, a 6-5 player who scored 458 points, an average of 17.6 per game, said "I wouldn't like to say anything because I'm just a witness before the grand jury."

Cards Jar Bucs; Cubs Whip Giants

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milwaukee knocked Los Angeles out of the National League lead by beating the Dodgers 2-1 Friday night behind the five-hit pitching of Lew Burdette, who also hit a home run. Cincinnati moved back on top with a 4-1 victory at Philadelphia.

San Francisco, whipped 12-6 by the Chicago Cubs, fell a game behind in third place. St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 5-2.

Burdette (5-5) walked one and struck out five, blanking the Dodgers on four hits until Charlie Neal homered in the seventh inning. The Braves, four games below .500 in sixth place, collected eight hits and beat southpaw Sandy Koufax (9-3) with a deciding run in the seventh on four walks, the last by reliever Larry Sherry. Burdette's homer came in the fifth off Koufax, who had won six in a row since May 16—when he lost to Milwaukee 5-3.

The Reds broke loose for all four runs in the eighth off loser Johnny Buzhardt (2-7) and relievers Ken Lehman and Frank Sullivan. Consecutive singles by Gordie Coleman, Gene Freese and Wally Post brought in the first run, for a 1-1 tie, and pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch then broke it up with a double off Lehman. Ken Hunt (7-3) was the winner, pairing with reliever Jim Brosnan for a three-hitter.

A grand-slam homer by Billy Williams off loser Billy Loes (4-4) gave the Cubs a 5-1 lead in the third inning at San Francisco. They roughed up Sam Jones, Jim Duffalo and Jack Sanford for the other seven runs on eight hits, one a two-run homer by George Altman. Bob Anderson (4-5) won it in relief. Both clubs had 12 hits, with Felipe Alou, pinch-hitter Jim Marshall and Sanford socking solo homers for the Giants, who had won four in a row.

The Cardinals broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the seventh off southpaw Harvey Haddix (4-2). Consecutive bases-loaded singles by Tim McCarver and winning right-hander Bob Gibson (4-3) brought in the first two runs and sewed it up.

Chamberlain Fans 12; Cox-Merchants Romp

Steady Dick Chamberlain chalked up a dozen strikeouts and his teammates wielded loaded bats as Cox-Merchants trounced Columbiana, 17-2, in a County-City League fray Friday at Patterson Field.

The bespectacled Chamberlain, a league veteran, limited Columbiana to four hits and was in complete control all the way in besting Brooks of Columbiana.

Manager John Andrason's Cox-Merchants belted base hits left and right to score runs in every inning. Triples by shortstop Reider, and third-sacker Campbell high-lighted the 13-hit asault of the city entry.

Reider and Campbell turned sluggers by collecting tree hits for the evening, while speedy outfielder Bob Gessford belted a pair of singles.

Chamberlain gave up singles to Grant Sloan, the Fritch brothers and Brooks.

Brooks walked five and struck out six in being charged with the loss. He was relieved by Allen.

Vets Glass, Burbicks And Medics Win

Veteran Plate Glass and Burbick's enhanced their first place standings in Little League action Friday with decisive victories.

With Danny Standley chalking up his third victory of the season on the mound, Veteran Glass whipped Golden Star, 7-3. Standley twirled a three-hitter and whiffed four batters.

Paul DeGarmo and Marvin Six with two hits and Mike McVay's two-run homer sparked the nine-hit attack of Veteran Glass, the unbeaten leader in the American Division.

Standley yielded singles to Gary Klembara, Butch Beadnell and Bill Cunningham of Golden Star. The league leaders committed five errors but still won handily.

Burbick's, the unconquered leader of the National Division, walloped Chester Legion, 8-0, with Mike Hughes hurling the victory.

Jay Welch of Burbick's observed his birthday by belting a homerun. Eddie Golden doubled and Mike Hughes tripled for the winners. Brewer started for Chester Legion which showed a six-hit attack.

In one other game, Medic's defeated McBurney's, 8-1, as Jim Jones fanned eight in going the distance to earn the pitching victory. He bested Bernard Lovejoy of McBurney's who fanned three.

Buzz Arrington showed a double and two singles for Medic's, in second place in the National Division. Phil Talbott socked a pair of doubles in the 12-hit attack of Medic's. For McBurney's, Dave Pridemore, J. Kidder and B. Marino stroked singles.

Ohio's South Stars Picked To Beat North

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Superior height and scoring potential have stamped the southern squad as the favorite in the fourth annual North - South All-Star Ohio High School Basketball Game at Cuyahoga Falls tonight.

The Rebels have a 21.4-point average per man, compared with the North's 18-point average.

Coaches of both squads have said they will use the platoon system, giving all the 22 players a chance to see action. The teams will play 10-minute quarters.

Polo Match Slated

A polo match is scheduled tonight at 7:30 with Beaver Valley opposing Cleveland at Darlington Field.

Bids Studied On Street Oil

The Board of Control Friday afternoon took under advisement four bids from two companies for furnishing 50,000 gallons of oil for use on unsurfaced streets and alleys.

The bids were filed with Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Lee Copenhaver by the Standard Oil Co. of Cleveland and the Cleveland office of the Allied Oil Co. division of the Ashland Oil & Refining Co., which operates a river terminal in Cleveland.

The apparent low bid was from Standard on No. 6 fuel oil if purchased in railroad tank car lots of 6,500 to 10,000 gallons. The price is 9.17 cents a gallon. For the same oil shipped in transport truck loads of 4,000 gallons, it bid 9.97 cents a gallon.

On MC-O type oil, Standard bid 12.61 cents a gallon in tank transport shipments and 11.81 cents a gallon in tank car lots.

Allied bid 9.75 cents a gallon on its non-specification road oil, which it said meets the city's specifications for No. 6 fuel oil. The oil would be pre-heated and loaded onto the city's distributor truck at the Wellsville terminal, the bid said.

Although the city's legal advertisement for bids asked offers of 50,000 gallons of oil, Standard's bid in each case was on quantities of 40,000. Council appropriated $5,000 for the oiling program on May 16. City crews will perform the work, applying the oil after the streets have been scraped and crowned.

Bettis Sees Need For Area Electronics, Defense Plants

The need for Columbiana County and the rest of Ohio to attract electronics industry and defense contracts in a move to diversify the state's economy was underscored today by State Rep. Warren Bettis.

The representative said he attended a luncheon this week at Columbus sponsored by Battelle Memorial Institute, a scientific research and development center there.

He said it was pointed out that Ohio has a great amount of heavy manufacturing industry, and reacts to that industry's boom or bust.

"In view of the high unemployment in my county, it was interesting to note that Ohio is falling behind other industrial states in diversity of industry," Rep. Bettis said.

"For example, in such fields as electronics, research and development and military defense, we do not come close to other top industrial states.

"California received back from every federal tax dollar a total of 70 cents by way of Defense Department contracts. Ohio receives but 14 cents on each tax dollar from such sources."

Rep. Bettis said scientists at this week's meeting indicated that congressmen and senators from California were making the effort to get defense contracts and attract industry in the three fields.

"Obviously, our congressmen and senators are making very little effort on behalf of Ohio, and such a fact should be recognized by the public."

He said Ohio should have some 310,000 jobs in these fields, based upon its position as an industrial state. In New York in 1960, he said, there were 196,000 employed in these industries while there were only 33,000 in Ohio.

He said he supports a Battelle recommended proposal that the engineering department at Ohio State University be expanded to an engineering center, which would be recognized by companies desiring to locate in areas where these industries could be developed.

Peipers was presented to the altar and to the East during the ceremony.

The rifle team will meet June 24 at 8:30 a.m. with Robert Kidd, advisor, in charge. The drill team will meet each Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the temple. Bill Burlingame, chairman, announced.

A softball field for the chapter is being prepared at the Homer D. Hoffman farm and members were urged to participate in the project. A district softball schedule has been prepared.

Larry White, chairman, reminded new members that candidates are required to attend obligation practice on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Interpolation was conducted by Mark Wilson, chaplain. Lunch was served in the diningroom by the DeMolay Mothers' Circle, with Mrs. Eric Young in charge. The tables were decorated with spring flowers.

The Wellsville Evangelical United Brethren Church was assigned a new pastor during the 11th annual Ohio East Conference of the EUB Church, which ended Friday at Linwood Park, Vermilion.

The Rev. Lawrence Lyman, a student supply pastor, will replace the Rev. Robert Myers, who was granted a year's leave of absence.

Rev. Lyman was transferred from the Pennsylvania Conference. He is to be married within the next two weeks and will move to Wellsville with his bride. He is expected to preach his first sermon Sunday, July 2.

Rev. Myers will preach tomorrow and Sunday, June 25. He plans to continue his study in Christian education, perhaps entering teaching later on. Rev. and Mrs. Myers and three children came to Wellsville from Ontario, Canada, in October.

Mrs. William Morrow of Nevada St., Wellsville, was a lay delegate from the church to the conference. She was accompanied by her son, Stephen.

Bids Studied On Street Oil

The Board of Control Friday afternoon took under advisement four bids from two companies for furnishing 50,000 gallons of oil for use on unsurfaced streets and alleys.

The bids were filed with Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Lee Copenhaver by the Standard Oil Co. of Cleveland and the Cleveland office of the Allied Oil Co. division of the Ashland Oil & Refining Co., which operates a river terminal in Cleveland.

The apparent low bid was from Standard on No. 6 fuel oil if purchased in railroad tank car lots of 6,500 to 10,000 gallons. The price is 9.17 cents a gallon. For the same oil shipped in transport truck loads of 4,000 gallons, it bid 9.97 cents a gallon.

On MC-O type oil, Standard bid 12.61 cents a gallon in tank transport shipments and 11.81 cents a gallon in tank car lots.

Allied bid 9.75 cents a gallon on its non-specification road oil, which it said meets the city's specifications for No. 6 fuel oil. The oil would be pre-heated and loaded onto the city's distributor truck at the Wellsville terminal, the bid said.

Although the city's legal advertisement for bids asked offers of 50,000 gallons of oil, Standard's bid in each case was on quantities of 40,000. Council appropriated $5,000 for the oiling program on May 16. City crews will perform the work, applying the oil after the streets have been scraped and crowned.

Bettis Sees Need For Area Electronics, Defense Plants

The need for Columbiana County and the rest of Ohio to attract electronics industry and defense contracts in a move to diversify the state's economy was underscored today by State Rep. Warren Bettis.

The representative said he attended a luncheon this week at Columbus sponsored by Battelle Memorial Institute, a scientific research and development center there.

He said it was pointed out that Ohio has a great amount of heavy manufacturing industry, and reacts to that industry's boom or bust.

"In view of the high unemployment in my county, it was interesting to note that Ohio is falling behind other industrial states in diversity of industry," Rep. Bettis said.

"For example, in such fields as electronics, research and development and military defense, we do not come close to other top industrial states.

"California received back from every federal tax dollar a total of 70 cents by way of Defense Department contracts. Ohio receives but 14 cents on each tax dollar from such sources."

Rep. Bettis said scientists at this week's meeting indicated that congressmen and senators from California were making the effort to get defense contracts and attract industry in the three fields.

"Obviously, our congressmen and senators are making very little effort on behalf of Ohio, and such a fact should be recognized by the public."

He said Ohio should have some 310,000 jobs in these fields, based upon its position as an industrial state. In New York in 1960, he said, there were 196,000 employed in these industries while there were only 33,000 in Ohio.

He said he supports a Battelle recommended proposal that the engineering department at Ohio State University be expanded to an engineering center, which would be recognized by companies desiring to locate in areas where these industries could be developed.

Inspected by Wesley Peipers, governor of the 6th District, Harding Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was given a rating of "excellent" at its meeting Thursday night in the Masonic Temple. Forty-eight attended.

Peipers was presented to the altar and to the East during the ceremony.

Initiation ceremonies were held and Dennis Burke and William F. Fletcher were received as new members.

The rifle team will meet June 24 at 8:30 a.m. with Robert Kidd, advisor, in charge. The drill team will meet each Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the temple. Bill Burlingame, chairman, announced.

A softball field for the chapter is being prepared at the Homer D. Hoffman farm and members were urged to participate in the project. A district softball schedule has been prepared.

Larry White, chairman, reminded new members that candidates are required to attend obligation practice on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Interpolation was conducted by Mark Wilson, chaplain. Lunch was served in the diningroom by the DeMolay Mothers' Circle, with Mrs. Eric Young in charge. The tables were decorated with spring flowers.

Next meeting is July 6 in the temple.

Hookstown Post Office Will Move

The Hookstown Post Office was to move this afternoon to its modern building and Miss Olive Floyd, postmaster, said service will begin Monday morning in the new quarters.

The one-story brick, 24 by 46 feet, is about a block away from the old quarters, a former tinshop attached to a residence.

Miss Floyd has served 20 years and she said the Post Office was in the old quarters many years before she became postmaster. Entirely modern equipment was installed in the new location.

A clerk and a carrier assist Miss Floyd and there are two substitutes.

Have You Tried Whistling?

Tense, depressed, bored? Here's some advice that is more than just lip service

By JOHN KORD LAGEMANN

JUST BEFORE the alarm went off one morning, I heard someone whistle "Yankee Doodle" as he walked past our house.

I had been lying awake with an impacted wisdom tooth, and I dreaded getting up to keep an appointment to have it extracted. Leaning back on my elbows, I listened to the whistling man till he turned the corner and the sound died away.

There was something contagious about this piping sound, and I found myself whistling the same tune as I went downstairs for breakfast. My son Jay had finished his oatmeal but was still nervously cramming for a final history exam he had to take that morning.

"I wish I felt like whistling," he told me. "I'm scared stiff of this exam."

But as he left on his bike, he was whistling "Yankee Doodle" loud enough to be heard all the way to school. A few minutes later, I cheerfully waved good-bye on my way to the dentist, and my wife looked at me with approbation.

"You ought to whistle more often," she said.

During the year that has passed since then, whistling has become second nature with me. I've found it offers a lot more than meets the ear. It's fun. It can change your mood from black to sunny. It helps you concentrate. In tight spots, it screws up your courage. Even if you can't carry a tune vocally, you can whistle in pitch—or near enough. And, of course, you don't have to know the words.

Considering what whistling does for the spirit, I wonder why I let it drop for so long—and why more people don't use it to make life a little more effervescent.

In the Illinois town where I grew up, you could hear whistling almost any time of day. Age had nothing to do with it. My grandfather whistled while he hitched his favorite mare, White Spot, for a buggy ride to the farm. My father whistled over his accounts. Art Velie, the grocery boy, whistled while he patted a pound of tub butter into a paper platter or drew a jug of sorghum molasses from a barrel.

My older brother Fred could whistle two notes at once, like Fritz Kreisler playing "Caprice Viennois" on a Red Seal record. Caroline, my kid sister, could whistle only while inhaling. All her melodies sounded like the finale to an ice-cream soda.

To us children, "whistling in the dark" wasn't just an expression. Walking home from Grandpa's after dark, we always whistled when we crossed the unlighted alleyways that divided every block. We also whistled while passing cemeteries and haunted houses.

Our whistling was not very fierce and could hardly have deterred a really determined ghost or boogeyman. But it worked just the same, and it demonstrated a profound and reassuring truth which I didn't fully grasp till much later in life—that most of the ghosts and boogeymen who terrify us are not present in the world around us but reside only within ourselves.

Whistling isn't just a front, though. When you face a real challenge, whistling actually does steel you to face it.

Each time I drove my wife to the hospital to have a baby, she whistled the whole way. Whenever she sounded off pitch, I stepped a little harder on the accelerator.

Whenever our sons, as children, had to have a hypodermic injection, my wife always told them to whistle. That way they didn't have a chance to build up fears of the needle jab and felt it much less when it happened. Our pediatrician, who adopted the device as a regular procedure, says it has helped his other patients enormously.

Any performance requiring steady nerves and delicate manipulation seems to promote whistling. Perhaps that's why it's so characteristic of tightrope walkers, fighter pilots, surgeons, and most skilled technicians to whistle while they work.

Once you start whistling, one melody leads to another without any conscious thought of where you're going. You find yourself borne on a winding river of reminiscence.

You will discover that whistling has the power to evoke many moods which can be recaptured in no other way. If you want to set off on a sentimental journey sometime, begin with an old favorite like "Three O'Clock in the Morning" or "Danny Boy" or "My Old Kentucky Home"—and then just keep whistling.

Have You Tried Whistling?

Tense, depressed, bored? Here's some advice that is more than just lip service

By JOHN KORD LAGEMANN

JUST BEFORE the alarm went off one morning, I heard someone whistle "Yankee Doodle" as he walked past our house.

I had been lying awake with an impacted wisdom tooth, and I dreaded getting up to keep an appointment to have it extracted. Leaning back on my elbows, I listened to the whistling man till he turned the corner and the sound died away.

There was something contagious about this piping sound, and I found myself whistling the same tune as I went downstairs for breakfast. My son Jay had finished his oatmeal but was still nervously cramming for a final history exam he had to take that morning.

"I wish I felt like whistling," he told me. "I'm scared stiff of this exam."

But as he left on his bike, he was whistling "Yankee Doodle" loud enough to be heard all the way to school. A few minutes later, I cheerfully waved good-bye on my way to the dentist, and my wife looked at me with approbation.

"You ought to whistle more often," she said.

During the year that has passed since then, whistling has become second nature with me. I've found it offers a lot more than meets the ear. It's fun. It can change your mood from black to sunny. It helps you concentrate. In tight spots, it screws up your courage. Even if you can't carry a tune vocally, you can whistle in pitch—or near enough. And, of course, you don't have to know the words.

Considering what whistling does for the spirit, I wonder why I let it drop for so long—and why more people don't use it to make life a little more effervescent.

In the Illinois town where I grew up, you could hear whistling almost any time of day. Age had nothing to do with it. My grandfather whistled while he hitched his favorite mare, White Spot, for a buggy ride to the farm. My father whistled over his accounts. Art Velie, the grocery boy, whistled while he patted a pound of tub butter into a paper platter or drew a jug of sorghum molasses from a barrel.

My older brother Fred could whistle two notes at once, like Fritz Kreisler playing "Caprice Viennois" on a Red Seal record. Caroline, my kid sister, could whistle only while inhaling. All her melodies sounded like the finale to an ice-cream soda.

To us children, "whistling in the dark" wasn't just an expression. Walking home from Grandpa's after dark, we always whistled when we crossed the unlighted alleyways that divided every block. We also whistled while passing cemeteries and haunted houses.

Our whistling was not very fierce and could hardly have deterred a really determined ghost or boogeyman. But it worked just the same, and it demonstrated a profound and reassuring truth which I didn't fully grasp till much later in life—that most of the ghosts and boogeymen who terrify us are not present in the world around us but reside only within ourselves.

Whistling isn't just a front, though. When you face a real challenge, whistling actually does steel you to face it.

Each time I drove my wife to the hospital to have a baby, she whistled the whole way. Whenever she sounded off pitch, I stepped a little harder on the accelerator.

Whenever our sons, as children, had to have a hypodermic injection, my wife always told them to whistle. That way they didn't have a chance to build up fears of the needle jab and felt it much less when it happened. Our pediatrician, who adopted the device as a regular procedure, says it has helped his other patients enormously.

Any performance requiring steady nerves and delicate manipulation seems to promote whistling. Perhaps that's why it's so characteristic of tightrope walkers, fighter pilots, surgeons, and most skilled technicians to whistle while they work.

Once you start whistling, one melody leads to another without any conscious thought of where you're going. You find yourself borne on a winding river of reminiscence.

You will discover that whistling has the power to evoke many moods which can be recaptured in no other way. If you want to set off on a sentimental journey sometime, begin with an old favorite like "Three O'Clock in the Morning" or "Danny Boy" or "My Old Kentucky Home"—and then just keep whistling.

cases, the reason behind petticoat plundering is more astonishing than the statistics increased 400 percent. Other experts report that among rank-and-file workers (sales clerks, storehouse workers) women steal more on an individual basis than their male counterparts—and they are considerably harder to catch.

In fairness to women, the insurance company hastens to add that it does not mean there are more women thieves than men: it's simply that, given equal opportunity to steal, as they have been since the war, women will keep right up with the men and frequently pass them.

In recent years, there have been enough women embezzlers to compile a composite picture of them. Usually, she is, or has been, married. About 31 years old, she ranks in the bottom third of the nation's wage earners. She has worked 2½ years for her present employer and has been stealing for the last 6½ months at a rate equal to her annual salary. Because she works most frequently with merchandise, her thefts most frequently run to goods. For every dollar of cash stolen from business, $7 in merchandise is pilfered.

There are several differences, though, between the male and female thief that fascinate experts. Norman Jaspan, president of Norman Jaspan Associates, a business consulting firm, and a leading authority on embezzlement, points out a few: more often than the male, women will steal on impulse or to avenge a real or fancied wrong by their boss; they will continue stealing even when they know they are being watched, something a man is afraid to do; and some steal as much for the love of doing things for others as for the money itself.

Stealing for Love—of Others

The three cases cited above are classics of this third phenomenon, unusual but not rare.

In Sheldon, Iowa, for example, the Lady Bountiful was Mrs. Burnice Geiger, a $5,000-a-year cashier in a bank of which her father was president. Mrs. Geiger lived well, but she shared her good fortune, too.

A neighbor suffering from diabetes, for instance, received a cash gift from her. Ailing townspeople received flowers or candy. When her church needed hymnals, it was Mrs. Geiger who paid for them. She also paid for a public-address system so the minister's sermons could be heard by all, and when the difficult subject of a salary increase for the minister arose, she dismissed it with: "Oh, I'll take care of that." For the deserving, there were loans for trips to Europe (Mrs. Geiger rarely went beyond Des Moines), food packages for the needy, and school tuition for youngsters from impoverished families.

Several months ago, a bank examiner strode into Mrs. Geiger's bank and asked to see the books. Without hesitating, she handed them over; this was routine, it had happened before. The examiner soon discovered an $8,000 shortage but wasn't startled. Probably a clerical error. Not so, replied Mrs. Geiger.

"I give up," she said, almost in relief. "It will never balance." It never did—what's more, in the final audit it didn't balance by some $2 million!

For 35 years, Mrs. Geiger had been looting her father's bank, living richly but not pretentiously, and helping countless others over the hard shoals of modern finance. She merely had hidden deposit records of the money she stole, until absentmindedly she entered an embezzled deposit on the very day the examiner appeared for an audit.

But Mrs. Geiger was second in both philanthropy and thievery. The master of all modern embezzlers is "Miss Minnie." Minnie Clark Mangum was the stern spinsterish manager of a Norfolk, Va., savings and loan association who insisted her girl clerks always wear stockings and refrain from chewing gum.

Something for Everybody

Her relatives, however, knew a more kindly Miss Minnie. She bought them seashore lots, automobiles (85 cars, one estimate reported, and a total outlay to one dealer of $281,000), and hosted them at extravagant birthday and holiday parties. She allegedly loaned $135,000 to a lady evangelist, and provided $197,000 to another family she liked.

One day, while bank examiners were checking her records, a clerk spotted Miss Minnie hiding a deposit file card and tipped them off. Miss Minnie promptly fired the girl but was soon out of a job herself. Curious examiners checked more closely, and eventually discovered an estimated $2.8-million shortage, the boodle of 22 years of juggling deposit cards. Miss Minnie got five years in prison.

Neither Miss Minnie nor Mrs. Geiger was wholly altruistic. That honor goes to the Illinois lady teller who felt sorry when she saw bank officials deny loans to businessmen being squeezed by a recession.

The clerk advised the businessmen she could arrange loans for them if they would come to her cage. They did—frequently. Eventually, the bank became suspicious. Its loan business was falling off, and the line was getting longer in front of their kindly middle-aged teller. By the time a check was made, she had given away $457,000. She explained, "I felt sorry for them and didn't take a dime for myself."

What makes a God-fearing, well-meaning woman betray her trust and steal, even when only to help others? How does she differ from the traditional male thief who supposedly steals mostly for the three "B's"—booze, babes, and bookies? Actually, they differ very little: both steal to satisfy a similar need. They want to be "big shots," in their own way.

Dr. Robert Laidlaw, a New York psychiatrist and former president of the American Association of Marriage Counselors, was asked about the "benevolent" woman embezzler and replied:

tion, one can only speculate as to inner motivations. It would seem probable that such women may suffer from a marked sense of inferiority or feelings of guilt, and that stealing money and giving it away is a means of countering these feelings. As community leaders, they gain needed prestige. They become well liked. They go to any extremes to put themselves in a good light. They know there is a threat of being caught, but they repress any apprehensions to win the applause of being a 'benefactor.'"

A neighbor of Mrs. Geiger had another analysis after he heard about her $2-million theft: "She always did like to play God."

Help for the Needy

Investigators have found another related group of thieves more common among women—the tragic cases of stealing to help loved ones in dire need or trapped by a self-destroying habit.

On the East Coast, for example, a leading bookstore discovered that one of its salesclerks had stolen an estimated $30,000 in merchandise. Her 17-year-old son was dying of cancer, and most of the widow's $41 weekly salary went for his care.

She could not afford things to make the boy's last days pleasant, so she began taking books for him to read; next she stole medical textbooks (costing $25 apiece and up) to understand his illness better; when he lost weight, she stole cookbooks to provide him with the best of foods. Neighbors cared for him during working hours, and they were rewarded with books. When discovered, the salesclerk was dismissed but not prosecuted, and the store found another job for her.

Sociologist Donald Cressey, a student of embezzlement motivation, calls this type of problem "nonsharable"—that is, the thief is driven to stealing by an agonizing dilemma he or she must face alone. An attractive platinum-blonde bank employee had such a problem recently. Her husband lost his job because of injuries from an auto accident. Disgusted at having to live off his wife's earning, he tried to make money by gambling.

Feeding a Sieve

Soon gambling became an obsession, and he needed more and more money. Gambling alone seemed to give him hope, so the wife supplied funds without telling him the source. Eventually she stole $80,000 from the bank to cover his losses. When she told him, he walked out on her, and she confessed to police.

Statistics are lacking on male-female business thieves, but Jaspan's records indicate a "broad spectrum" with about 25 percent of all workers, men and women, honest under all circumstances; more than 50 percent honest as long as not overly tempted; the rest will steal any time they think they can get away with it. Apparently the only significant difference is that there are more incorrigible male thieves than women thieves.

Jaspan asks that America devote more time and effort to helping the vast majority of its workers to remain honest. In many instances, he says, the employer and his supervisors must bear the blame for turning basically honest but humanly weak individuals into crooks. Mismanagement, poor security, and bad example all help lead easily tempted men and women astray.

"This is a menace," he says, "that must concern every responsible member of the community—the worker, the clergy, the business executive, the union leader."

The Consumer Pays

In terms of money, employee thievery threatens the ruin of some 250 businesses this year. It increases prices to the consumer as much as 15 percent. In terms of human values, its cost can never be measured. Relatively few worker-thieves are caught and prosecuted by the law, but the punishment inflicted by conscience and shame is often as stern and ironic as any from the Old Testament.

Jaspan tells about a woman whose husband suffered two afflictions—gluttony and laziness. He worked only a few days a year but ate on a full-time basis. It was easy for the woman to take money from her cash register in a specialty shop to support him. For seven years, she stole about $5,000 annually, virtually all of which went for her husband's appetite.

An illness caused the helpful wife to miss several weeks of work, and during that time an inventory was taken which she could not alter. Her $35,000 theft was uncovered at last, and tearfully, almost thankfully, she confessed. "Not only couldn't my husband hold a job," she explained, "but he had such a ravenous appetite that my salary wasn't enough to feed him."

What induced the illness that, in effect, trapped the embezzler? She was so conscience-stricken by her dishonesty that she couldn't eat. While her husband was stuffing himself, she was virtually starving. She had missed the fateful inventory because of a serious illness resulting from malnutrition.

About which I would rave,
Would be my wife's okay
For me to skip a shave.

Quips and Quotes

On a crowded bus, a gentleman found himself standing next to a stout, middle-aged matron who was having a difficult time balancing several packages. A husky teenager sat in front of them, blissfully ignoring the situation.

"I'll give you a dollar for that seat," the gentleman said.

The youth readily accepted the offer, and the man turned to the matron with a bow. "Please accept this seat, madam," he said graciously.

"You paid for it," she replied, "so you should really have it."

"Not at all. I just wanted to give this youngster a lesson in manners."

The woman gratefully accepted the seat, then looked up at the youth. "You should thank this man for the dollar."

"I already did, Mom," the youth said.

"May I ask a small favor?"

The proud parents enrolled their little daughter in a very progressive school. Part of the entrance examination was a talk with a psychologist. "And are you a little boy or a little girl?" asked the expert cloyingly.

"A little boy," snapped the child.

The psychologist rejected the child on the grounds she was confused and should be put into a school for problem children. On their way home, the distraught mother asked, "Why, for heaven's sake, did you tell the nice man you were a boy?"

Her daughter gave her a long look. "When somebody asks me a silly question," she said, "I give him a silly answer."

A young man from central Europe came to the United States to seek his fortune. After only a few years, his enterprise and imagination had built a million-dollar business, and he returned to his native land, rich and filled with pride.

After a tearful reunion, his loving mother asked, "And how are you doing in America, my dearest one?"

"Wonderful, Mama," he said. "I'm a millionaire already. Soon I will be a multimillionaire."

"That's nice," the old lady said, "but answer me—are you getting enough to eat?"

The gift for Father's Day,
About which I would rave,
Would be my wife's okay
For me to skip a shave.

Quips and Quotes

On a crowded bus, a gentleman found himself standing next to a stout, middle-aged matron who was having a difficult time balancing several packages. A husky teenager sat in front of them, blissfully ignoring the situation.

"I'll give you a dollar for that seat," the gentleman said.

The youth readily accepted the offer, and the man turned to the matron with a bow. "Please accept this seat, madam," he said graciously.

"You paid for it," she replied, "so you should really have it."

"Not at all. I just wanted to give this youngster a lesson in manners."

The woman gratefully accepted the seat, then looked up at the youth. "You should thank this man for the dollar."

"I already did, Mom," the youth said.

"May I ask a small favor?"

The proud parents enrolled their little daughter in a very progressive school. Part of the entrance examination was a talk with a psychologist. "And are you a little boy or a little girl?" asked the expert cloyingly.

"A little boy," snapped the child.

The psychologist rejected the child on the grounds she was confused and should be put into a school for problem children. On their way home, the distraught mother asked, "Why, for heaven's sake, did you tell the nice man you were a boy?"

Her daughter gave her a long look. "When somebody asks me a silly question," she said, "I give him a silly answer." —Frances Benson

A young man from central Europe came to the United States to seek his fortune. After only a few years, his enterprise and imagination had built a million-dollar business, and he returned to his native land, rich and filled with pride.

After a tearful reunion, his loving mother asked, "And how are you doing in America, my dearest one?"

"Wonderful, Mama," he said. "I'm a millionaire already. Soon I will be a multimillionaire."

"That's nice," the old lady said, "but answer me—are you getting enough to eat?"

DICK POPE— Host to 20 Million Americans

From a swamp nobody wanted, he built a tourist mecca and had fun doing it

By BOB DRISCOLL

RICHARD DOWNING POPE, 60, short, pudgy, and as high-spirited as the multicolored sports shirts that identify him, has led more than one of the 20 million guests at his Cypress Gardens show place to comment: "He looks like Santa Claus."

To see him standing motionlessly surveying the floral kaleidoscope of the Gardens in central Florida, one understands why some of his small-fry guests think Christmas has come early. His infectious booming chuckle does little to dissuade them.

The trick is to find Dick standing still, however. He's a ceaseless goer, as likely to turn up at a far corner of the Gardens snatching up an offending candy wrapper as at another corner overseeing the construction of a new $250,000 swimming pool.

Sheer energy, an uncanny sense of showmanship, and the verve of a Mississippi river-boat gambler have enabled him to win a reputation as one of America's last great promoters.

Although he was born in Iowa and didn't move to Winter Haven, Fla., until 1911, his fortunes are as thickly entangled with his adopted state as Florida itself once was with dense swamps. Ironically, Dick turned one of these swamps into his 107-acre tourists' paradise, earning him the title of "The Swami of the Swamp."

Until the time Cypress Gardens began to bloom and boom, Dick was known around Winter Haven as a dynamic youth who had married Julie Downing, "the most beautiful girl in Alabama."

It's difficult to keep track of Dick's early career after a successful fling in the booming real-estate business of the '20s with his father.

"When the boom ended, I went into the publicity business," Dick recalls. "I can't remember how many accounts I took on. It didn't seem as if Julie and I would ever get settled; we even moved to New York and Chicago for a while. But it paid off in know-how when it came time to put Cypress Gardens on the map."

A magazine story about a Charleston banker who made $36,000 in a year by opening his opulent gardens to the public gave Dick the idea for what eventually became Cypress Gardens.

"That story kept nagging me," Dick says, "and I couldn't figure out why. During the Depression, I was chairman of the canals commission for the lakes region, and I decided to sell a branch of the WPA on a project to clear some swamps nearby."

Dick sold the idea to the tune of a $4,500 investment before the state cooled on it. "People won't come here," they said. "The roads are poor, and who'd leave the coastal areas anyhow?"

Dick didn't believe the experts, however, and when the government offered him title to the land if he could put up $1,500, he borrowed the money.

"I wanted to build a sort of public park," Dick says, "a place that would beautify the area and enhance real-estate values. I still had no idea of the tremendous tourist potential."

Draining a swamp and turning it into a garden paradise was a mammoth job.

"To complicate matters," he continues, "money was hard to come by. I borrowed a bare minimum from the family, hired Vernon Rudder, presently my maintenance superintendent, as foreman of my first crew, and we went to work.

"Julie worked hours in the hot sun, too, overseeing floral plans. She had to. I didn't know an azalea from a carrot then."

Unquestionably, the Gardens would have flopped had it not been for Dick's showmanship.

HIS BASIC FORMULA is simple: a beautiful girl, usually one of his champion water skiers, with the floral beauty of the Gardens as a background. He has crowned more than 1,000 "queens"—"everything from an Azalea to a Kumquat Queen," he says. "Ever since Julie hit upon the idea of a water-ski show while I was away during World War II, we were 'in.' Julie's quite a girl, you know," he adds proudly.

But Dick is quite a man himself, and much of the success of the water-ski show can be attributed to his own daring. He made history, for example, as the first water skier to hazard a jump. Before the wonderment had a chance to die, he became the first person to fly an aquawing, a contrivance like an airplane wing attached to a shell that rises from the water when towed behind a boat.

"Nearly drowned, too," he recalls. "My brother Malcolm was towing me with an outboard, and when he saw me soaring 50 feet in the air, he became so confused he cut his engine, leaving me to take a 50-foot spill into the drink."

Nowadays, Dick is known as "Mr. Florida," a rare tribute for an adopted citizen of the state. But perhaps even more powerful evidence of the esteem in which he is held are several bids to draft him for governor—all of which he has firmly squelched.

Richard Downing Pope literally has found his place in the Sunshine State. Where else could you find a more gracious host to 20 million Americans?

How I Changed My Father

By MARLO THOMAS
as told to Marya Saunders and Robert Gaines

Why is Father's Day important? The daughter of Danny Thomas, who was once an absentee dad, supplies a warm and amusing answer

"MOMMY, who's that man?" Terry cried out.

I'll never forget the look on the face of my father, Danny Thomas, when he heard my baby sister ask Mother that question.

Daddy had been away from home for three months, playing in night clubs around the country. He came charging through the door that day many years ago, his arms loaded with presents. He shouted a noisy, "Hello," and reached to kiss Terry, who was four at the time. She took one look at this large man with a cigar in his hand and ran off to Mother crying.

Incidents like that hurt. Daddy didn't want to stay away from our home in Beverly Hills, Calif. He wanted to be with his family more than anything. But he also wanted to give us security. He felt the only way he could give those he loved everything they needed was by touring the country as a night-club comedian.

Daddy might never have realized it was him we really needed if it had not been for a composition I was asked to write when I was 16 years old and attending Marymount High School for Girls. My English teacher, Mother Celine, asked the class to compose a speech about the future. When I got home that night, I sat down and began to type out things I'd been feeling and thinking for a long time.

The speech was titled "Hurrah for Today!" Here is a part of it:

"Everywhere I go, I hear people talking about tomorrow—no one ever says anything about today. Everybody is so busy working to secure a future for themselves and their families, to secure money and satisfy their ambitions, that they miss the todays going by. What's the matter with today? Can't today's 24 hours be just as fruitful and joyful as tomorrow's?

"Even my own father, who I think is the smartest man in the world, spends most of his time traveling from city to city and country to country trying to secure tomorrow for his loved ones and himself. Unfortunately, while he is doing this, his family is growing up without him. When his tomorrow comes, it will be an empty one.

"People should pray for tomorrow and do their best. But I say hurrah for today!"

Mother Celine gave me an "A" for the speech. She said it was so good she would like me to recite it before the entire student body.

When I got home that afternoon, I could hardly wait to tell Daddy about the honor. He was in New York working at the Copacabana, but would call around dinnertime. He phoned home every day he was out of town.

But I missed him terribly in those days, and there was so much to tell him I didn't get around to my speech. I used to write him three or four times a week, however, so I decided to send my speech to him. I only wanted him to be proud of me. It never occurred to me that Daddy didn't know how deeply I felt about his being away. I didn't hear from him for about a week. Then one day a special-delivery letter came. He wrote:

"My Darling Marlo,

"I received your composition and I'm very proud you did so well. I, too, feel the pangs of unhappiness about being away from the family I love. I've always felt there was something very sad and wrong about being away from home as much as I have been.

"It certainly took me aback to hear your words echo my feelings. You're quite right, and your composition has opened my eyes. Please don't worry any more, darling. Daddy promises you he will bring security with him and will try to find a way to be home more often.

"Love, Your Daddy"

I CRIED reading the letter. It seemed like the most important and wonderful letter I had ever received. I knew Daddy would never make a promise he didn't mean to keep. Several weeks later he flew home and announced he was going to find a way to stay permanently, and the family had better get used to his shouting around the house.

He went out the next morning and made a plea to all the networks, agents, and writers he knew: "I want to entertain people, but I want most of all to stay home with

"Love, Your Daddy"

I CRIED reading the letter. It seemed like the most important and wonderful letter I had ever received. I knew Daddy would never make a promise he didn't mean to keep. Several weeks later he flew home and announced he was going to find a way to stay permanently, and the family had better get used to his shouting around the house.

He went out the next morning and made a plea to all the networks, agents, and writers he knew: "I want to entertain people, but I want most of all to stay home with my growing children—please find me a suitable show."

That was a tough request. Daddy couldn't be a leading man in a dramatic series because he wouldn't have his nose fixed and because he thought it was important to make people laugh. Neither did he want to be a stand-up comic. Television had a reputation for burning up the popularity and material of comedians who just tell jokes. This kind of show promised no security. Finally he was offered a television series about a night-club entertainer who travels a lot and is constantly being pestered by his family to settle down. This situation comedy perfectly fitted our Daddy, who had traveled more than 137,000 miles on the night-club circuit while we were growing up in Beverly Hills.

There was little difference between the Danny Thomas of nine years ago, when I wrote the speech, and the tense, ambitious, theatrical Danny Williams you see every week on the "Danny Thomas Show." But time has changed the real Danny. Our whole household has changed. For one thing—it's far noisier!

Discipline in our house used to be something of a problem. Mother always ended up the villain. When Daddy was away 35 to 40 weeks a year, coming home to his children was a treat, and he would hate to spoil it by punishing us if we did something wrong. Now he has developed a special technique for dealing with us. For small misdemeanors, he shouts like a wounded moose. But when something serious happens, he becomes very quiet and tries to talk the whole problem out.

There's less tension in our home, too. Mother is no longer torn between traveling with Daddy and staying with us. She doesn't become irritable, and Daddy is relaxed.

Life is more fun with Daddy around. He's Mr. Do-It-Yourself of Hollywood, for example, constantly building things. Sometimes he will come home exhausted from rehearsal. Instead of going to bed, he will start tinkering with his latest project in the workshop. Recently we helped him finish our tennis courts. The white lines weren't straight, but Daddy said, "Who cares?"

Like most fathers, he now has a fairly normal schedule. He works during the day and comes home in the evening for dinner. He insists that everybody be home, if possible, by 7:15 for dinner. This is the one time during the day when we all get together to discuss what we have done.

ONCE DADDY SAYS GRACE, you never know what is going to happen. Everything goes on at once. My little brother Tony may stand up and tell a joke. Terry may be playing this week's favorite tune on Mother's good crystal. Not long ago I found myself yelling above the din: "Without a doubt we are the loudest family on the block."

Daddy, who had been shouting at the top of his lungs, quieted down and even looked a bit sheepish. I ran over and hugged him and said, "But without question, we are also the happiest family on the block."

Daddy recently said this another way when he ended grace with: "God has watched over us. He has given us more than I ever hoped we could have." And with a wink he added, "Hurrah for today!"

Let's Draw a Grasshopper

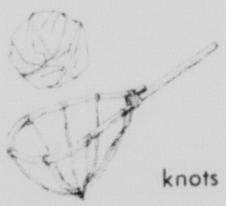
And adding legs that bend in humps
To spring him off when up he jumps.

Summer grasses seem to pop
With 'hoppers going hop, hop, hop!

Scoop Ball

By Robert Besch



To make the "scoops" for this outdoor game, find a strong but flexible twig about three to four feet long. Form one end into a hoop six inches across and fasten with heavy string. Use same kind of string for the scoop net or pocket, which should be four inches deep. Ball is made of newspaper wadded into a four-inch sphere and held together with a couple pieces of string.

There are two teams. One team starts with the ball from its own goal line. The object is to keep the ball moving constantly by tossing it with the scoops and to get it across the other team's goal, thereby scoring one point. The opposing team tries to intercept the ball and do the same thing.

Only scoops can touch the ball, and players must keep their free hands behind their backs. No pushing allowed. If the ball hits the ground, a player can recover it for his team by slapping the scoop over it. Then the play continues.

Flip a coin to see which team starts the first play. After that, the team making a goal gets the ball for the next play. Team which scores the most goals in 10 plays wins the game.

How Psychic Are Your Dreams?

By S. RALPH HARLOW

PEOPLE IN ANCIENT TIMES—perhaps because they were more superstitious and ignorant, perhaps because their simple lives were much closer to reality—placed far more importance on dreams than we do today.

True, our modern world has its volumes of dream interpretation by modern soothsayer and modern psychiatrist alike; it has its scientists probing into the mechanics of dreams; it has its psychologists connecting dreams to the subconscious mind. But it is a rare modern man who seriously wonders if some dreams might not be simple, uncluttered communications with the psychic world.

Are not some dreams psychic experiences in themselves? Few Americans are unfamiliar with the death dreams of Abraham Lincoln. This realistic, practical American repeatedly dreamed of attending his own funeral, the last time only a few days before Good Friday, April 14, when the President and Mrs. Lincoln sat in a private box in Ford's Theater in Washington, watching "Our American Cousin." It was then, during intermission, that John Wilkes Booth made Lincoln's dream of death come true.

If dreams, or at least some of them, are indeed psychic experiences, perhaps we approach an explanation to the "I've-been-here-before" experience that almost all of us have felt at one time or another in our lives. You are exploring a wooded path on a gentle slope in New Hampshire, and you have never been to New Hampshire before. It is pleasant and quiet, and a sense of peace lulls you into wonderful tranquility. Then, dimly, you begin to know that this path, this forest, this day is a timeless place and a timeless time; that you have been here before.

It goes quickly, this glimpse of the eternal, but most of us have had it, regretting when it is taken back from us—sometimes snatched suddenly, as if the giver changed his mind; sometimes drained slowly from our senses and leaving us again with unsatisfying reality.

I REMEMBER, too, a student—let's call her Annie—telling me of such a dream, a recurrent, serial-story dream, with each chapter of the experience connected to the last installment. Always the scene opened on a street corner in a small New England town. There were white-painted clapboard houses with shutters the color of ancient weathered copper. There were green lawns and lilacs and forsythia. And in each dream a young girl was waiting for her. She and Anne would chat on the corner for a moment and then stroll a hundred yards to a large old house with a huge veranda. Inside, in the big living room, a group of young people would already be gathered, and Anne and her dream companion would join them, singing around the piano, playing parlor games, and spending endless hours in young people's discussions.

Each dream was essentially a repetition of the first one. And then one night, when the dream had run for perhaps a dozen nights, Anne met her friend on the corner and found her depressed and sad. "This is our last meeting," her dream friend said. "I will see you, but you will not see me."

Anne brushed aside the words of her friend, saying, "Of course we shall meet again." But they never did; the dreams stopped and never recurred.

A few months later, with her father and sister, Anne was driving up the New England coast. None of the family had ever seen the Atlantic shore, and they toured from Boston into Maine, enjoying the early summer beauty and exploring the small colonial towns.

Then suddenly, in one small coastal village, Anne recognized the street corner where she had met her dream friend so many times. Excitedly, she said, "Father, turn left here. Turn left at this corner." Her father did as she asked.

"Four more houses," Anne said as they drove slowly up the street. "Three more. It's on the right, just on the other side of that lilac hedge. Now! Stop here, Father! Right here. This house."

Anne got out of the car. It was the house. Identical with that in her dreams. But now the lawn needed mowing and a black and white sign near the walk said, "For Rent." It was the house she had known, but it was empty now, its furniture gone, its floors bare and dusty, its youthful voices transferred to some other place—or other dream.

THERE IS always the possibility, too, that a dream can be a psychic communication with someone we have known in this life and who has gone on to the next. Only recently, my wife Marion reported to me an experience that strengthens my belief in this possibility. Marion, recovering from a broken hip, shared her hospital room with Ruth, the elderly widow of a musician.

One morning after breakfast, Ruth said, "Marion, I saw my husband last night. It was a dream, but it was so vivid! He was carrying his cornet, and he played for me." Her voice softened and grew lower. "I've heard him play it many times. I recognized it—'The Death March.' When he'd finished, he said, 'Ruth, I need you over here. Come to me.'"

And that evening Ruth, who was expecting to be discharged from the hospital in a few days, did go over to her husband. She died quietly in her sleep.

At home after Ruth's death, I switched on the hall light; it burned steadily for a few minutes, then suddenly went out. It was a fairly new bulb, and I remembered inserting it only a short time before. Therefore, I tested it in a floor lamp. It burned brightly.

Then I thought of Ruth's death and a previous experience in which a failing light had accompanied a death. I returned the bulb to its socket in the hall ceiling. It burned brightly and steadily. Only six hours previously I had held Ruth's hand, and she had said to me in a strong voice, "I will be all right."

Was the erratic light bulb just that—a manufacturer's error that escaped detection and was brought back to use by my handling of it? Or was its behavior some signal from Ruth that there is life after death—a survival of personality?

There were green lawns and lilacs and forsythia. And in each dream a young girl was waiting for her. She and Anne would chat on the corner for a moment and then stroll a hundred yards to a large old house with a huge veranda. Inside, in the big living room, a group of young people would already be gathered, and Anne and her dream companion would join them, singing around the piano, playing parlor games, and spending endless hours in young people's discussions.

Each dream was essentially a repetition of the first one. And then one night, when the dream had run for perhaps a dozen nights, Anne met her friend on the corner and found her depressed and sad. "This is our last meeting," her dream friend said. "I will see you, but you will not see me."

Anne brushed aside the words of her friend, saying, "Of course we shall meet again." But they never did; the dreams stopped and never recurred.

A few months later, with her father and sister, Anne was driving up the New England coast. None of the family had ever seen the Atlantic shore, and they toured from Boston into Maine, enjoying the early summer beauty and exploring the small colonial towns.

Then suddenly, in one small coastal village, Anne recognized the street corner where she had met her dream friend so many times. Excitedly, she said, "Father, turn left here. Turn left at this corner." Her father did as she asked.

"Four more houses," Anne said as they drove slowly up the street. "Three more. It's on the right, just on the other side of that lilac hedge. Now! Stop here, Father! Right here. This house."

Anne got out of the car. It was the house. Identical with that in her dreams. But now the lawn needed mowing and a black and white sign near the walk said, "For Rent." It was the house she had known, but it was empty now, its furniture gone, its floors bare and dusty, its youthful voices transferred to some other place—or other dream.

THERE IS always the possibility, too, that a dream can be a psychic communication with someone we have known in this life and who has gone on to the next. Only recently, my wife Marion reported to me an experience that strengthens my belief in this possibility. Marion, recovering from a broken hip, shared her hospital room with Ruth, the elderly widow of a musician.

One morning after breakfast, Ruth said, "Marion, I saw my husband last night. It was a dream, but it was so vivid! He was carrying his cornet, and he played for me." Her voice softened and grew lower. "I've heard him play it many times. I recognized it—'The Death March.' When he'd finished, he said, 'Ruth, I need you over here. Come to me.'"

And that evening Ruth, who was expecting to be discharged from the hospital in a few days, did go over to her husband. She died quietly in her sleep.

At home after Ruth's death, I switched on the hall light; it burned steadily for a few minutes, then suddenly went out. It was a fairly new bulb, and I remembered inserting it only a short time before. Therefore, I tested it in a floor lamp. It burned brightly.

Then I thought of Ruth's death and a previous experience in which a failing light had accompanied a death. I returned the bulb to its socket in the hall ceiling. It burned brightly and steadily. Only six hours previously I had held Ruth's hand, and she had said to me in a strong voice, "I will be all right."

Was the erratic light bulb just that—a manufacturer's error that escaped detection and was brought back to use by my handling of it? Or was its behavior some signal from Ruth that there is life after death—a survival of personality?

I was just thinking...

WALK DOWN Main Street with me. See the little white house on the corner? A crippled man lives there again. It was his family home until his mother died. Then he had nothing left except his useless legs. He was to be put in an institution.

The people in our town changed that. They rebuilt his house. They put in new plumbing and heating, new floors and walls. Thousands of them contributed money, and many did the work with their own hands. Everybody from the union to the Cub Scouts.

The crippled man does not walk alone. In our town, we walk with him.

See the garage by the railroad tracks? That's Santa's workshop. Santa and his wife have devoted years of their life and most of their income to bringing Christmas to the children who need it most. Now the people in our town have a hand in it, too. Businessmen, women's clubs, and the Brownies. And hundreds more.

THE GOLDEN RULE is lived every day down by the railroad tracks.

See the mud in the streets? Maybe you think this is a dirty town. It's not always like this, but we have had a flood here. Our people faced real disaster.

Do you know why we are able once again to walk down our muddy streets?

Because all of us joined together to turn back the tide. Because, when tragedy came, we were all brothers. Because the teen-agers of our town swept like a new broom through the waters. In their young strength, they parted the sea, and now the green grass grows again and the sun shines.

You will find poverty in our town, and disease. You will find corruption, if you wish. But you will also find on Main Street that we do not send to see for whom the bell tolls. In our town, no man is an island.
